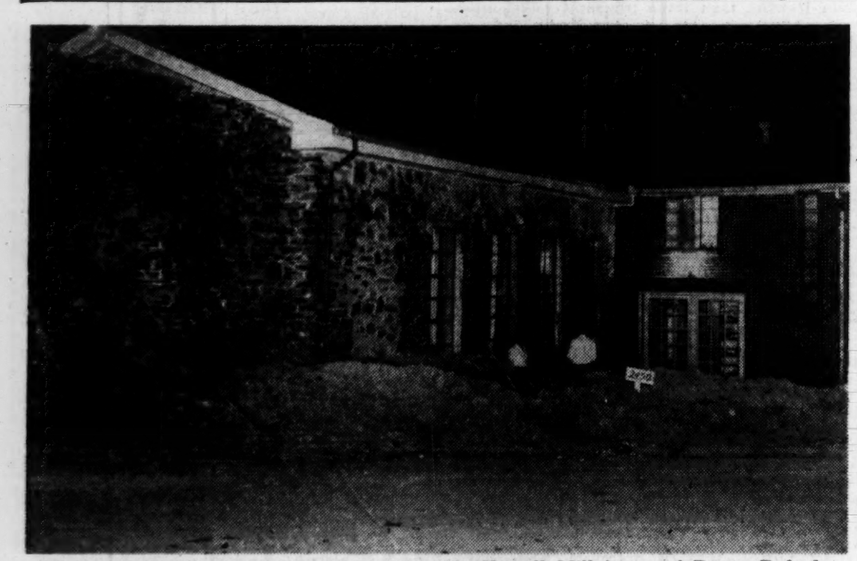
Matron Victim of Sex Slayer, Test Indicates; Rings Sought



HOME OF SLAIN BEAUTY—The fashionable Howell Mill home of Peggy Refoule, whose body was found Thursday in Peachtree Creek, was converted from an old water mill dating from the War Between the States when the area was a battleground in a phase of the war between Union and Confederate forces in the Atlanta campaign.

Peggy Refoule Borne to Creek Bank On Dead-End Road, Is New Theory

Dr. Herman Jones, of the Fulton County Crime Laboratory, said Thursday that an examination of the body of Mrs. Paul Refoule, who was found strangled to death near her Howell Mill Road home Wednesday night, has definitely established that she was criminally assaulted. The disclosure came as Fulton police concentrated on a search for two rings missing from the fingers of the former Peggy Alston, 31-year-old Atlanta socialite, seeking a clue to the slayer.

Dr. Jones also set the time of death at between 3 and 3:30 p. m. Thursday, basing his opinion on the condition of the food found in her stomach.

He suggested that Mrs. Refoule sat down to lunch about 12:30 p. m., completing the luncheon about 1:30. He based his opinion on the amount of time required to digest food.

Dr. Jones also found a tiny particle of black hair imbedded under a finger nail of the victim. This hair, he said, is about a quarter of an inch in length, and is described by him as "black."

The toxicologist also reported finding under the nail other material which is undergoing extensive laboratory tests.

Assistant Fulton County Police Chief E. G. Fitzgerald has announced the police patrol in the northwest area has been doubled.

Chief Fitzgerald also reported that the wrist watch Mrs. Refoule had possessed 10 years is missing.

Chief Fitzgerald, through deduction of the facts known earlier, had estimated the death time at about 4 p. m. He pointed out that Paul Refoule, the victim's husband, left the home about 2 p. m., with a couple of friends who had attended a luncheon at the residence. Refoule then went to Oglethorpe University, where he conducted art classes, Chief Fitzgerald said, until after 5 p. m.

Upon leaving Oglethorpe, Chief Fitzgerald said, Refoule took two other Oglethorpe teachers to their home.

"It must have been 5:50 p. m. before Refoule reached his own home," Chief Fitzgerald said.

A theory was also advanced that the auburn-haired young matron had ridden or been carried in an automobile along a dead-end road to the bank of Peachtree Creek at the rear of her studio home. Her body was found in the creek in shallow water.

A coroner's jury Thursday afternoon heard Dr. Sterling F. Jernigan, County pathologist, declare Margaret Alston Refoule came to her death by strangulation with a garrot looped around her throat and apparently twisted from the front.

Meanwhile, the time of the slaying was said by members of the family to be fairly definitely established at between 2 p. m. and 4 p. m. She was last seen by her husband, French art instructor, at 2 p. m., following a luncheon at which two women friends were guests at the home.

Asst. Chief E. G. Fitzgerald, of the Fulton police, said he had the names of friends who went to call on Mrs. Refoule at 4 p. m., and did not find her at home.

The Assistant Chief was also checking reports that two witnesses saw in mid-afternoon Wednesday a white man on a bridge which spans the creek a short distance from where the body was found.

The theory that Mrs. Refoule may have been carried, either dead or alive, in an automobile to the creek, was developed through study of a narrow, sandy road which enters the Refoule property from Howell Mill Road about 300 yards from the house. It comes to a dead end at the creek bank near where the body was discovered.

Possibility that she might have

STRANGLED SOCIETY BEAUTY—Fulton County police Thursday gathered forces for an extensive manhunt for the slayer of Mrs. Paul Refoule, 31, whose body was found face up in the creek near her home in fashionable Northwest Atlanta Wednesday night. Mrs. Refoule was the wife of French Artist Paul Refoule.

FATE SHADOWED LOVE

Death Cheats Pair Seeking Tranquillity

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

The slaying of Dresden-delicate Peggy Alston Refoule wrote a ghastly finale to an enveloping love story which conquered nationality, distance, religious barriers, cruel separation, war, starvation and Nazi persecution, and seemed at last within sight of fulfillment and tranquillity.

The friends of Paul Refoule, her French artist husband, and their small son, Jon Paul, 9, had seen them fit into their lovely new home in the old, transformed Howell Mill, and remarked that their soul-testing experiences had brought them peace. They were a compact, understanding threesome, devoted to each other.

Thursday, these friends could not escape the bitter reflection that a willful fate had dogged the tempestuous beginning eleven years ago.

That was when Peggy the slight, pretty daughter of the W. Ott Alstons, a prominent Atlanta family, and the granddaughter of James Oliver and Fannie Berry Wright, pioneer builders of the community, traveled with her mother for a season of study at The Sorbonne in France. There she met Paul, the son of Robert Refoule, Judge Advocate of Orleans, France, and likewise a student of art.

It was, as they say, love at first sight.

When the Alstons returned to Atlanta, Paul followed, importuning the Alstons to give their consent to his marriage to their daughter. The family did, and on Jan. 19, 1937, the Protestant Peggy Alston married the French Artist at a fashionable wedding at the Christ the King Cathedral in Atlanta.

The newly married couple left for Paris.

Two years later they came back to Atlanta, bringing their baby son. While they were here, war flamed from Hitler's guns, searing all Europe.

"Paul was frantic to get back to France," a relative recalled. "He is fiercely patriotic, and he was wild to get back. He went, by the first boat, and joined the French Army."

Peggy was determined to go too. The only way she could get back into the country then was to give up her American citizenship. She swept it aside to join her husband.

The Nazis swept into France. Paul Refoule was taken prisoner at Dunkirk. He was held first in Germany, then in Poland.

Peggy lived with her son and her husband's family at Orleans, protected at first by the means of the elder Refoules. Gradually money became worthless, and hunger and cold stalked the rich and poor alike.

Peggy's few letters home told of chopping up furniture for kindling, of giving her share of the dwindling food supply to her son. She got sporadic messages from Paul, spirited to her by friends in the French underground, but she was not permitted to see him or to write to him.

There were long silences when the Alstons did not hear from Peggy and Jon at all, and when the messages came, they were grim. There had been illnesses and no medicine, Red Cross boxes which had been rifled and many never received, desperate fear and ceaseless worry.

Then in 1944, in mid-Winter,

'Commerce' Budget Slashed 32 Pct., In House Appropriations Measure

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—The House took some more lusty swings at President Truman's budget requests Thursday, passing an appropriation bill which calls for a 32 percent cut in his estimates for the Commerce Department.

Also, it carries a 22 percent cut for the State Department below Mr. Truman's requests, and a 20 percent cut for expenses of the Federal judiciary. The Justice Department got off with a 2.7 percent nick.

In passing the $538,976,392 measure, the House upset its appropriations Committee in only one item.

The single setback for the Committee's economy drive was on funds for operation of air-traffic control towers at 151 airports in as many cities throughout the country.

The Committee had cut out the funds, and recommended that municipalities pay for the Civil Aeronautics Administration personnel operating the towers. By a 141 to 84 vote the House put the money, $4,948,448, back into the bill.

The overall total in the bill, which is to run the Agencies for the year beginning July 1, was cut 23 percent below the President's budget figures. Secretary of State Marshall and Secretary of Commerce Harriman alike have protested their cuts, and doubtless will ask the Senate to be more generous.

Partially offsetting the increased funds for the air-traffic towers was elimination of $1,700,000 for technical and scientific services in the State Department. A technicality knocked that item out without a vote.

There was no recorded vote on final passage, only a thundering of "ayes" and no audible "nays."

Beaten down were last-minute attempts to:

Restore $1,833,500 for additional salaries and services of secre-

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP) Subcommittees in both the Senate and House went ahead Thursday with plans for Federal aid to public schools—a program the House Republican leadership is said to have ordered junked. Chairman Aiken, Republican, Vermont, of a Senate Public Welfare Subcommittee told a reporter after a closed session: "We were unanimous in agreeing to bring out a bill."

Lewis Retreat Paves Way for Negotiating

WASHINGTON, May 15—(INS)—John L. Lewis Thursday abandoned his stand for industry-wide bargaining and agreed to begin contract negotiations Tuesday with 75 percent of the nation's soft coal mine operators.

Lewis' retreat from the United Mine Workers' demand for a nation-wide agreement strengthens the possibility that there will be no strike in at least three-quarters of the industry when the Government relinquishes control of the pits June 30.

Tuesday's negotiations will get under way without representatives of the Southern operators, representing about 25 percent of the bituminous coal industry.

UN Appoints Palestine Probe Body

UNITED NATIONS HALL, FLUSHING, N. Y., May 15—(UP)—The United Nations General Assembly, concluding its first special session, Thursday appointed an 11-Nation Commission to investigate the Palestine problem and appealed for a truce in Holy Land fighting until the Commission reports.

The United States and Great Britain received almost exactly what they wanted, and indicated hope that the new investigation—the twenty-sixth in 25 years—might lead to permanent peace in the oil-rich Middle East.

There was little actual indication that it would.

The Jewish underground in Palestine has announced it would continue to fight, and Arab states warned that violence might spread.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko, in announcing that Russia would accept partition of the Holy Land if no other solution was possible, revealed that Russia was prepared to agree to what was most likely to be the final American position on Palestine—partition into Jewish and Arab states.

Grain Rushed To Hungry Ruhr Quiets Angry Mood

BERLIN, May 15—(UP)—Three shiploads of grain, rushed from the docks to the hungry Ruhr, were being distributed Thursday and officials reported an immediate lessening of the desperate, angry mood that has provoked an epidemic of strikes and demonstrations.

Col. Hugh B. Hester, Chief of the American Military Government's Food Division, said that, with relief in sight, he was sure the crisis could be bridged without further serious effects. He was referring largely to the War Department's decision to rush more than 1,200,000 tons of food into the American and British zones by July 31.

Speed Record Holder Dies in Ohio Crash

DAYTON, Ohio, May 15—(UP)—Capt. Martin L. Smith, 27, of Kiddner, Mo., holder of the official air speed record between New York and Washington, was killed Thursday when his P-80 "Shooting Star" crashed between Xenia and Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Wright Field officials said Smith, who made the New York-to-Washington flight in 29 minutes and 30 seconds, was the second top-flight test pilot at the Air Materiel Command Headquarters at Wright Field.

A veteran of 16 months' combat duty and 78 missions in the South Pacific, Capt. Smith flew one of the first P-80s from Long Beach, Cal., to New York in January, 1945, in four hours and 38 minutes.

Smith was on a test flight at the time of the crash, Wright Field officials said.

Military, Producers Closeted To Boost Air Power

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—High-ranking Army and Navy officers and makers of aircraft are currently holding a closed session at Williamsburg, Va., concerned over what some describe as America's badly lagging air power.

Some of those at the parley will come here Saturday to appear at a special session of the Senate Commerce Subcommittee on Aviation, headed by Sen. Brewster, Republican, Maine.

Brewster said that the plane builders will present figures showing that the United States is now third in world aviation.

Davis Says House Letter Refutes Mankin Charges

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 15—Rep. James C. Davis, of the Fifth Georgia District, Thursday made public a letter from Clerk of the House John Andrews which he said would refute charges by Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin that he is using dilatory tactics to prevent a congressional committee from investigating the conditions of his election.

A contest in the Fifth Congressional District election has been filed by Mrs. Mankin, who opposed Judge Davis in the balloting last year.

Judge Davis declined to comment on charges made by Mrs. Mankin in Atlanta in which she accused him of calling her "a yellow-livered disgrace to humanity," declaring that he did not wish to be drawn into a controversy with a woman.

"I will be content to let my reply stand on the statement of the Clerk of the House of Representatives," he said.

The following letter from Clerk Andrews, dated May 14, was made public by Judge Davis:

"Dear Mr. Davis: In response to your inquiry, you are informed that an informal meeting of the parties to the contested election case of Mankin vs. Davis was held in the office of the Clerk on May 7, at the suggestion of the contestant in the case for the apparent purpose of ascertaining whether or not all of the testimony had been received by the Clerk in this matter.

"Since the names of all of the parties whose depositions were taken were not listed by the officer before whom the testimony was taken on the packets then on file with the Clerk, you were unable, without breaking the seals, to determine whether or not all testimony had been deposited with this office. You were willing, and made the suggestion, that the sealed packets of testimony be opened at the time for this purpose.

The Clerk stated, however, that it was his opinion that the laws and rules governing contested election cases would not permit him to break the seals for that purpose at that time. You then agreed to telegraph the officers before whom the testimony was taken for information as to whether all testimony taken in your behalf before them had been transmitted to the Clerk, and upon receipt of such information to report to the Clerk.

"Your letter of May 12, informing me that so far as you knew all the testimony taken in this case had been forwarded to the Clerk and that you were prepared to open the testimony on May 13, 1947, at 4 o'clock p. m. in the Clerk's office, or at such other time and place as might be agreeable, is now on file in this office.

"This letter and a statement filed by the contestant with this office gives the Clerk reasonable assurance that all testimony is now on file in his office. And he is, therefore, this day transmitting by registered mail a notice to both parties to appear in his office for the purpose of opening the testimony in this case.

"Very truly yours,
"JOHN ANDREWS,
"Clerk of the House of Representatives."

NOT IN THE CARDS

'Sen. Dewey!' Who's He?

WASHINGTON, May 15—(NANA)—Labor union members from Warren, Ohio, had a tough time this week with their penny post-card protests against the labor bill. About 150 cards postmarked from the Ohio City arrived in Congress the other day addressed to "Senator Thomas E. Dewey," who is, of course, Governor of New York.

Post Office officials shunted the cards over to Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati. He refused them, said he had enough protests. Furthermore, said his office, why should he accept cards meant for a possible presidential opponent? They then tried Ohio's other Senator, John W. Bricker, of Columbus, who also turned them down.

When last heard from the cards were headed back to Warren, Ohio, stamped: Sen. Thomas E. Dewey "not found."

Dixie Phone Pickets Called Off; Early Restoration of Service Seen

The telephone strike in the Southeast was ended Thursday night—at least temporarily—when J. M. Massey, President of Local 20 of the Association of Communication and Equipment Workers and Vice President of the national organization, called off his Union's pickets from the Bell Company's telephone exchanges.

Massey said this action was taken in the hopes that normal telephone service might be restored this morning. The strike already had been settled between the Bell Company and the Southern Federation of Telephone Workers, but the majority of telephone workers had refused to cross the ACEW picket lines.

Massey said the order removing the ACEW pickets from telephone exchanges would remain in effect until Monday. He said that whether the picketing would be resumed on that date would be a decision subject to the Union's discretion.

Massey said Union workers Thursday night were contacting the 250 locations throughout the Southeast where ACEW picket lines are in operation, calling off the pickets.

G. D. Garner, Vice President of Southern Bell, said if the full complement of telephone workers return to their jobs this morning normal service should be resumed immediately.

J. B. Conine, Chairman of the Atlanta Joint Local, Southern Federation of Telephone Workers, following Massey's order removing ACEW pickets, urged all striking telephone workers to return to their jobs on schedule.

Relief From 91 High Is On Slate for Today

Georgia sizzled Thursday with temperatures above 90 throughout the state. Augusta reported a steaming high of 95 and Atlanta sweltered with 91, the hottest May 15 since 1899.

The Atlanta Weather Bureau said relief from the heat wave is seen for late today. Partly cloudy and continued hot today with scattered thundershowers this afternoon or tonight, followed by continued cloudiness and not quite so warm with scattered thundershowers for Saturday, was predicted.

Today's expected high and low temperatures are 90 and 66 degrees. A high of 87 is expected for Saturday.

WASHINGTON, May 15—(UP)—Pres. Ernest Weaver, of the striking Association of Communications Equipment Workers, Thursday night recommended that locals throughout the nation temporarily withdraw their picket lines from telephone buildings in all areas where local unions have settled their dispute with the Bell System. Late reports indicated the recommendations were being followed generally over the nation.

Accused S. C. Taxi Driver Denies Firing Shotgun Blasts at Lynching

By JANE NOLAND

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 15—(UP)—Stocky Roosevelt C. Hurd, named by seven defendants as the ringleader and executioner in the mob that lynched Willie Earle, denied today that he fired the coup-de-grace shots, and another accused lyncher said that more than one gunman blasted the Negro's body.

Jesse Lee Sammons' statement, read at the mass trial of 31 suspects, was the first to suggest that anyone other than Hurd had taken part in the shooting that finished off Earle after he had been knifed and clubbed into semi-consciousness. He did not name Hurd or any other defendant as triggerman but said, "I know that more than one man shot the Negro."

Hurd's own statement admitted only that he had gone along on the party which, he said, became so distasteful to him that—"when I seen they were going to kill the Negro, I just turned around, because I didn't want to see it happen."

Sammons, in an 11-page statement, gave the most gory picture to date of the Negro's lynching by a mob inflamed by alcohol and a desire to avenge the stabbing of a taxi driver who had worked with most of the cabbie defendants.

Sammons said he saw Hendrix Rector, one of the defendants, holding a knife and although he did not actually see him slash Earle, "I could hear the cutting of cloth and flesh."

"I heard nothing fronm the Negro," Sammons' statement read. "Then a fleshy man who was drunk shot him once with the single-barrel gun and begged for more shells. I heard three shots. I know that more than one man shot the Negro."

Sammons added that he had ridden to the lynch scene with "the leader" and sat in the back seat next to Earle. The man in the middle of the front seat had a shotgun and "was drinking heavy." Sammons said. Earlier testimony had identified Hurd as the man in

$175,405 More for State Parks Approved by Budget Commission

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

The State Budget Commission has approved an additional appropriation of $175,405 for improvements to the State Parks, and $100,405 of this amount is being spent immediately to put the parks into condition for the Summer opening.

This was disclosed Thursday by Parks Director Charlie Morgan, who said a record number of people already are crowding the parks which have just opened.

The new money is being spent to install electric refrigerators, hot water heaters and new cots and furnishings in cottages, place cold storage facilities in the kitchens, and repair and improve generally the buildings and grounds of the State Parks. Official diving boards are being installed on all lakes. Power lawn mowers have been purchased to keep the grounds in good condition.

Morgan announced that a maintenance shop will be established at Rutledge. Two full-time men will be hired to furnish carpentry, plumbing and electrical maintenance and services to each of the 26 park areas.

Sixty thousand dollars has just been spent in improving Vogel State Park, near Cleveland, and an additional $8,158 will be used to install a storage house for park equipment, a large refrigerator and a power-driven lawn mower.

Improvements at Vogel included new equipment for the 25 cottages —20 of which will be in use for the first time this year—new docks, new playground equipment for children, and remodeling of the inn.

For the Roosevelt Park at Pine Mountain, $21,583 was appropriated to provide furniture for the cabins and purchase a deep freeze unit, swings, picnic tables, diving boards and lawn mower, for the State Park, and $14,150 was allotted to repair the fences, bridges, and docks and purchase new cots and kitchen equipment for the Recreational Development Area.

Repairs totaling $20,483 will be made at the Laura Walker Park at Waycross. These include new cots and mattresses, kitchen utensils, diving boards, lawn mower, dock repairs, concrete picnic tables and repairing of 24 buildings.

Other improvements include:

Little Ocmulgee at McRae, $7,945 for aluminum roofs and cement floors for barbecue shelters, 1,500 concrete post markers, and $608 for a mower.

Fort Mountain Park at Chatsworth, $4,506 to repair seven buildings, construct picnic tables and purchase lawn mower.

Chehaw Park at Albany, $5,108 for 25 concrete tables, clearing of 4 acres, repairs and a lawn mower.

Alexander Stephen Park at Crawfordville, $4,050 for cots and mattresses, kitchen equipment and diving boards at the Recreational Development Area, and $2,808 for diving board, mower and repairs for the Memorial.

Crooked River at Kingsland, $3,306 for new cots and furnishings, cottages, refrigerators, mowers and diving boards.

Hard Labor Creek at Rutledge, $4,450 for cots, mattresses, kitchen utensils, 14 tents and diving board.

Indian Springs, $5,843 for hot water heater for mineral bath, outside lighting, 25 swings, mowers and repairs.

Magnolia Springs at Millen, $708 for mower and diving boards.

THE VICTIM'S SHOES—Capt. Marion Riley, left, and Asst. Chief E. G. Fitzgerald, of the Fulton County Police Department, study the shoes worn by Mrs. Paul Refoule when the Atlanta socialite's garroted body was found in Peachtree Creek near her Howell Mill Road home. Just as they were found on her feet, the shoes are tied together with the laces forming a neat square knot.

TRAGIC GRIST FOR MRS. REFOULE

Enjoyed Her Mill 'Castle' Only 9 Days--Then Death

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Beautiful Peggy Alston Refoule lived only nine days in the home of which she dreamed for many months.

The carpenters and painters had not quite finished their work on the old Howell Mill, which the Refoules converted into a unique residence, when Mrs. Refoule met her tragic death.

She enjoyed but briefly the huge, tapestry-hung studio, its massive fireplace, the chintz-decorated bedrooms, the completely equipped kitchen and the rustic beauty of the gray stone exterior.

When Mrs. Refoule and her French husband returned to Atlanta from Orleans last Fall, with their nine-year-old son, they lived with Mrs. Refoule's mother, Mrs. W. Ott Alston, near Brookhaven. But they were dreaming even then of a home of their own.

When Paul Refoule saw Howell Mill, long a landmark of sentimental and historic interest, his artistic eye pictured its residential possibilities.

The Refoules were interested in the history of the mill. They learned it was built in 1882 by the Foster brothers, of Madison. They learned it first housed a woolen mill—which never grew, however, to large proportions.

The mill was located only a short distance from a large grist and saw mill which the late Capt. Evan P. Howell built. The second mill was named for the Howell estate.

Although an attractive residential district has sprung up in the Howell Mill vicinity, the old stone mill was once located in an unpopulated woodland. Even today, much of the 1,000 feet which Refoule purchased along Peachtree Creek is in a jungle state.

Mr. and Mrs. Refoule bought the Howell Mill last Fall and immediately began converting it into a home. Some of the original stones and beams were preserved in the remodeling.

The mill's interior had a 50-by-25-foot room with two-foot-thick walls. This has been converted into a studio, with paneled walls and four huge windows on each side. It has a beamed ceiling and concrete floors. Exquisite tapestries adorn the walls, and several Refoule paintings rest on easels about the room. The studio has an enormous fireplace, with a huge mantel and built-in niches on the sides to be used as woodboxes.

Besides the kitchen, a small guest bedroom was added to the mill downstairs. Upstairs are two bedrooms and two baths. The master bedroom also has a large fireplace.

An old Negro man, Charlie Nunnally, 81, had many memories of the structure as he helped in the remodeling of the mill. Charlie built an addition to Howell Mill 53 years ago.

The converted Howell Mill is "a thing of beauty." It is a treasure-house of beautiful furnishings and original paintings. A dried-up creek immediately behind the house resembles a moat, and the house from that vantage point, some say, resembles a castle.

But Peggy Alston Refoule enjoyed it only nine short days.

Building Falls, 3 Killed, 4 Hurt

ELKO, Nev., May 15—(AP)—Twenty prisoners from the city jail dug into the ruins of an apartment-business building to ascertain if more than three persons were killed when the two-story brick structure collapsed early Thursday and its roof slid into an adjacent excavation.

It was believed, however, that all persons, including four injured, were accounted for.

Sheriff C. L. Smith identified the dead as Ralph Nielsen, his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Nelson, and Mrs. Kay Norris. Mrs. Norris' husband, who fell 15 feet into the excavation as he tried to save his wife, was among the injured.

Belief that the adjacent excavation had weakened the building's foundation was expressed by Chris Sheerin, editor of the Elko Free Press.

William Stone, of Paterson, N. J., guest at the adjoining Pioneer Hotel, heard the crash, looked out "and saw a man's leg and part of his body sticking out of the wreckage."

Operation Successful On Cuban 'Blue Baby'

BALTIMORE, May 15—(AP)—Fidel Escarpenter, three-year-old Cuban "blue baby," underwent an "apparently successful" operation Thursday to correct a heart condition that prevented his blood from getting enough oxygen, Johns Hopkins Hospital officials reported.

Hospital attendants said Fidel is in "good condition," but emphasized that the 48 hours following the delicate heart surgery is critical.

Victims of this heart malady were considered incurable until the Hopkins surgery was devised about two years ago.

DORIS LOCKERMAN

Let's See Now . . .

His second wife, a keenly perceptive woman who fit the Victorian term like it was made for her, added her grace to the bequest. She requested that the hospital display the portrait of Williams' wistful girl bride, who died at 18 in childbirth, and that it be hung, along with hers, beside the man they both loved. That was the touch of a gentlewoman.

The Trustees of the new hospital, W. E. Mitchell, Charles H. Jagels, N. Baxter Maddox, R. B. Wilby and Clark Howell, made another provision when they took over the supervision of the Jesse Parker Williams pavilion when it opened in 1941. They required that it be directed by a "gentlewoman," and they selected Miss Ruth Sheafe to do that job.

The results of such delicate prevision are apparent. They once led Dr. Louie D. Newton to stop in the soft green corridor of the quiet two-story building and whisper: "I am treading on sacred ground!" It was the same atmosphere that led a gaunt knot of a country woman Thursday to confess she was scared as a rabbit when she entered Williams, and "now I purely dread to go home," and her wardmate to pause in her crocheting to interject: "I've been tired all my life till I come here, and this bed is jest like heaven."

J. P. Williams is a small institution, as healing centers go in cities. It has only 60 rooms stretching along its restful corridors. But it is connected with Crawford Long Hospital and draws on that organization's medical equipment, nursing staff and resident doctors.

In five years the new hospital has accumulated the usual array of statistics, the usual log of misery and hope, showing the profits and losses of life written in the red ink of pain.

But it has worked out an approach to poverty and the crushing cost of illness in a matter-of-fact way. It simply charges patients what they can afford to pay. Miss Sheafe, a social worker, knows each family and each patient in her hospital, and she never imposes on their poverty.

"The word charity is never used," she says. "We say 'service' and that sparingly. No one knows who pays and who does not pay. We never present a bill. When we do make a decision about hospital costs, we may make mistakes, but we try to make them in the patients' favor."

Jesse Parker Williams draws rheumatic hearts from rural South Georgia, brain tumors from tenant farmers in North Georgia, crippled limbs from sawmill operators in Georgia's backwoods families, and they stay as long as hospitalization is needed.

The institution has, of course, been victimized by its liberal policy of fees. People have collected insurance payments and simply vanished with them. "And that burns me up," Miss Sheafe said, with a trace of outrage. "I hate to be taken advantage of! And we couldn't do what we do without a sound endowment to draw from. . . ."

The phone rang. "Hello . . . yes, Mrs. Williams," said Miss Sheafe, in the most unprofessional greeting ever heard in a hospital. "Why, yes, Billy is much better this morning! He had a fine night. He was playing with a little red ball this morning. He's so sweet! I just waved to him, and he was enjoying the sun and the breeze coming into his room."

"Do you answer the phone this way often?" we asked.

"Why, yes," answered Miss Sheafe, surprised. "Why not?"

Why not, indeed? Jesse Parker Williams was founded for gentlewomen.

STILL GOOD NEIGHBORS

Ricardo Duenas, San Salvador, El Salvador, Central America, here to visit his daughter, Maria Theresa, a patient at Warm Springs Foundation, told the Oglethorpe University International Relations Club Thursday that his people were afraid the Good Neighbor Policy would change when Roosevelt died. "But it hasn't," he said cheerily, "and we are glad." Duenas, a lawyer, said his little country is shying away from Communism, not trending toward it, and that he does not think he will ever go "back into politics." "The politics, in my country, is dangerous."

Science Forecast To Give Soldier Efficiency of 100

Today's Army chemical research program is being geared to give each soldier an effectiveness equalled to that of 100 World War II combatants, Col. C. E. Loucks, Chief of Research and Engineering for the Army Chemical Corps, told a group of Georgia scientists here Thursday night.

Loucks addressed the Georgia Chapter of the Chemical Corps, composed of veterans of chemical warfare service, at the Emory University Cafeteria.

"Following World War II," Col. Loucks told the group, "the Army came to recognize the value of utilizing science to develop a more efficient combat soldier. As a consequence, Army chemical research has developed 10-fold as compared to pre-war days."

Col. Loucks entered the Army during World War I as an artillery officer and was transfererd to the Chemical Corps in 1925. During World War II, he was Assistant Military Attache in France at the time of that country's recapitulation. The Army sent him to the Pacific area in 1945, where he served as Chemical officer on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff.

Wallace Asks Labor To Aid in War-Ban Plan

DETROIT, May 15—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace appealed Thursday night to organized labor for leadership in setting up "an over-all program to abolish war."

The former Vice President, in an address at a meeting sponsored by the Detroit Wallace Rally Committee, declared:

"Such a program includes disarmament, agreement on enforceable world control of atomic energy, the internationalization of strategic areas, the eradication of Fascism. . . .

"We need also some agreement on the cessation of economic and ideological warfare among nations. Continuation of the spiritual warfare backed up by the 'Truman Doctrine' can never bring peace."

Eddy To Seek Who's Who in Delta Strike

Investigation to determine which union represents mechanics and ground service employees who went on strike against Delta Airlines May 8, will begin here today, George Guest, Assistant Regional Director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), revealed Thursday.

According to Guest, the International Association of Machinists (Independent) filed a petition with the Mediation Board in Washington several months ago, requesting that the Board determine whether the IAM or the UAW represented a majority of the affected Delta employees.

Guest said he had been notified to contact Mediator Eddy, of Washington, at the Ansley Hotel today.

Meanwhile, the strike which was called by the UAW's International Executive Board continued.

Delta officials, however, indicated that all planes and scheduled flights were going off without a hitch and that CAA and Delta maintenance standards were being observed. A Delta official, pointing to 11 hours and 39 minutes lost through need for maintenance the weekend before the strike, said this maintenance need was cut to three hours and three minutes the weekend after the strike was called.

Of the 584 employees on the job before the strike, 266 are still working, Delta reported.

2-Party System in South Hindered By North's 'Meddling,' Moley Says

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

When are we going to have a real two-party system in the South?

That is one of the questions asked Thursday night by Dr. Raymond Moley, well-known educator and writer, in an address at Agnes Scott College.

In discussing the difficulties encountered in establishing such a system in the South, Dr. Moley mentioned ways to overcome them.

"The first step," he said, "is for the North to stop sticking its nose into the politics of the Southern States. Naturally, the people of the South resent that.

"The next step is for the North to recognize that such matters as the poll tax are for State regulation, and not for national regulation. By such recognition, the North can help greatly to create a situation where the poll tax and other similar voting regulations may gradually disappear all over the country."

Dr. Moley was one of the earlier members of Franklin D. Roosevelt's "brain trust," and later became a magazine editor.

Among the difficulties which the American people face now are the activities of minor pressure groups, he said.

"These groups do a lot of talking about democracy," he said, "but, in reality, they don't want much of it."

Dr. Moley said that the mechanization of small farms throughout the country was having a profound effect in changing the politics of many sections. This movement, he predicted, would continue and might result in a marked change in the political line-up in the United States.

"It is a trend toward national unity," he continued. "It is a trend away from party divisions based on economic differences. Farmers in Iowa and in Georgia will have more and more common problems. This trend, however, with the scattering of the Negro population throughout the nation, may ultimately break up the political situation which has created the Solid South. . . .

"Political adjustments invariably follow economic change. In the course of time, the development of more industrial and agricultural likenesses between the South and the North will alter our system of political parties. We shall, I hope and believe, see the growth of two truly national parties throughout all States, North and South."

Dr. Moley plans to return to New York Saturday.

KING OF HOBOES DESERTS RAILS—Jeff Davis, King of Hoboes and Emperor of the Knights of the Road, stepped from a Delta plane in Atlanta Thursday long enough to warn America of a "serious depression which will come in September," and then he was off again for Springfield, Ohio, where he will receive an honorary degree "of some sort or another" from Wittenberg College, one of Ohio's oldest colleges. He wasn't sure what degree Wittenberg would confer upon him, but he thought it would be the same as the one given him by Kansas City University several years ago—Doctor of Philosophy. The "King" is shown with Stewardess Jeanne Hendrix, comparing the luxury of air travel to modes usually employed by "Knights of the Road."

61 Are Indicted in Milk Dumping

NEW ORLEANS, May 15—(AP)—A Federal Grand Jury indicted 61 men here Tuesday on charges of conspiracy to interfere with interstate commerce during a milk strike last March and April.

The indictment declared the alleged conspiracy included the delay of trucks and Illinois Central trains; seizure of trucks, and of milk from the trucks and trains; shooting at trucks which failed to stop; and threats to blow up dairy plants unless distributors discontinued shipping milk into New Orleans.

Twenty-four of those named were indicted six weeks ago on charges of delaying the mail and larceny of goods in interstate commerce.

State and U. S. Funds Denied For Spring Street Viaduct

The State Highway Department Thursday refused Atlanta's request for State and Federal funds for a multi-million-dollar viaduct west of Spring Street, but City Planning Engineer Raymond Torres declared he hoped future consideration might be given some modification of the project.

State Highway officials refused the project on the grounds that a greater percentage of future traffic will go east rather than west of the downtown section.

Federal officials present at a conference of State, Federal, City and Fulton County engineers agreed with the State Highway Department's conclusion presented by Warren Neel, State Highway Engineer.

Exact cost of the proposed viaduct was unknown, but estimates have placed it at more than $10,000,000.

Torras made his statement concerning future consideration of a modified viaduct, at the same location, to the engineers attending the meeting.

"By no means is a viaduct west of Spring out of the picture," he commented.

To back his refusal, Neel presented the results of a recent survey indicating that the volume of traffic on the streets east of Spring has increased greatly in the past two years, while traffic increases on Spring itself, and streets west of it, have shown much smaller gains.

Neel said this survey showed the proposed structure would not solve Atlanta's traffic problem.

Georgian Draws Term In Carolina

ANDERSON, S. C., May 15—(INS)—Three men who had planned Wednesday morning to hold up the Bank of Piedmont at Piedmont, S. C., Thursday began serving 10 and 15-year sentences.

Just 25 hours after George W. Parker, 23, of Elberton, Ga., and Lester R. Ayres, 23, of Gaffney, S. C., had bound a Greenville, S. C., taxi driver to a tree and taken his taxi on a planned bank robbery the men received their sentences in a courtroom.

Judge G. B. Green, presiding at the Anderson County term of Criminal Court, passed sentence on the pair and on George L. Solesbee, 24, of Piedmont. The three pleaded guilty to robbery and larceny.

The trio's plan, as related by Sheriff W. J. Erskine, of Anderson County, was to hire a Greenville taxi to carry them near Piedmont, where they planned to ditch the driver and proceed with the robbery. Ayres and Parker were to rendevous with Solesbee, who had another car.

After the pair had bound the taxi driver, M. D. Pittman, of Eastbrook, in a wooded spot, they drove the stolen taxi to meet Solesbee.

Solesbee, however, had not arrived, and the other two men began to look for him. Meanwhile, the bound driver escaped his bonds and reported the incident to the police, who arrested the pair.

Solesbee was apprehended last night in Athens, Ga.

The three were arraigned at the current term of court in Anderson Thursday after a grand jury had returned a true bill.

The trio pleaded guilty, and Judge Green sentenced Solesbee to 15 years for the plot and Parker and Ayres to 10 years each. They began serving their time at the Anderson County Stockade Thursday.

Greek Aid Bill Sent To Truman

WASHINGTON, May 15—(UP) Congress sent the $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid bill to the White House Thursday and put the final touches on a general foreign relief measure that will provide another $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 for famin-ridden peoples overseas.

President Truman was expected to sign the Greek-Turkish aid bill without delay, starting an immediate flow of relief supplies and arms to the Communist-threatened Mediterranean States.

Equally fast action was looked for on the general relief bill. Five Senate and five House conferees went into a huddle to iron out the major differences between the separate measures passed by the two chambers to head off starvation in Italy, Austria, Poland, Hungary, Greece, Trieste and China.

The principal point at issue was a House economy move which slashed the overall amount from the $350,000,000 requested by the Administration to $200,000,000. The Senate Wednesday passed a bill authorizing the full $350,000,000 program and its conferees were trying to persuade the House delegation to accept that figure or, at a minimum, a $300,000,000 compromise.

VANDENBERG FIGHTS

Sen. Pres. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, urged swift action on the grounds that the food crisis in Europe is becoming worse.

The Greek-Turkish program was ready to roll even before President Truman signed the bill. Advance guards of the military and economic missions that will help distribute the American help and guide the Greeks and Turks in its use were mobilized and ready to take off.

A $100,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan was ticketed to start the movement of supplies and keep it going until Congress appropriates the full $400,000,000.

Still unsettled were the names of the two administrators who will direct the programs in Greece and Turkey. Betting in official quarters were that President Truman would pick Mark Ethridge, Louisville, Ky., publisher now serving on the United Nations Balkan Investigating Commission, and that the program in Turkey would be run by Edwin C. Wilson, U. S. Ambassador there.

WILL AID SPREAD?

With the principle of the Truman Doctrine upheld, Senators and Representatives in increasing numbers were demanding a clearer picture of how far it is to be extended and how much it is going to cost.

There was a growing belief, fostered by private statements of top Administration figures, that it will spread far beyond Greece and Turkey and their famine-haunted neighbors and will cost at least $5,000,000,000 annually for the next three or four years.

The $5,000,000,000 estimate is based on the expectation that the United States will export $16,000,000,000 worth of goods and services urgently needed by the rest of the world in each of the next few years, and will import about $8,000,000,000 annually, leaving all other countries an $8,000,000,000 trade deficit.

Rome Film Blaze Toll Set at 26

ROME, May 15—(AP)—Rome Fire Department officials reported that at least 26 persons were killed and 25 injured by a flash fire which turned the offices of the Minerva Film Company here into a veritable furnace just before quitting time Wednesday night.

Additional bodies may be buried in the ruins. Some of those hospitalized were so badly injured they were given little hope of recovery.

So fast did the fire spread that it trapped almost everyone in the building. Charred bodies were found in crouching positions in the ruins "like terra cotta statues," firemen said.

Police were reported questioning officials of the Company to ascertain whether inflammable film stocks had been permitted to accumulate in the building in violation of safety regulations.

Pilgrim Trust Gives $616,248 in 1946

LONDON, May 15—(AP)—The Pilgrim Trust, established in 1930 by the American philanthropist, Edward Stephen Harkness, distributed a record total of $616,248 in grants in 1946.

The Trust's annual report showed that during the past 16 years it had distributed grants totaling $6,145,052 to various British purposes, including art and learning, preservation of ecclesiastical buildings and compilation of historical records.

Ralph McGill, Sen. Hatch On Network for 'U. S. Voice'

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—The U. S. State Department's internationally-broadcast "Voice of America" program was described nationally broadcast "Voice of path "leading to a war of blood" and as the "only weapon by which the truth is transmitted" abroad about America.

The question of continuing the broadcasts, currently before Congress, was debated on the ABC radio program, "America's Town Meeting of the Air."

Participating in the discussion were Sen. Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico; Rep. Taber, Republican, New York; Ralph McGill, Editor of The Atlanta Constitution, and Frand C. Waldrop, executive assistant of the Washington Times-Herald.

Waldrop described the Government broadcasts as "a governmental propaganda mill" and said the most it can do is harass and provoke the Russians into bloody retaliation."

Sen. Hatch defended the broadcasts as "strongly supporting our diplomatic representatives overseas."

McGill urged that the broadcasts be continued, described them as "a program of information" and said he hoped they would be continued because he wants persons outside the United States "to know that we are not a nation of imperialists, militarists, gangsters and boors, as the Russian propaganda service daily informes Europe and South America."

Bill Would Make Lynching Federal Crime

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—Rep. Case, Republican, New Jersey, Thursday introduced legislation which would make it a Federal crime to incite, aid or take part in a lynching.

Violations would be punishable by up to 20 years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine.

Woman's Body, Beaten, Found in Hotel Room

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15—(AP)—The nearly nude and brutally beaten body of Mrs. Una A. Campbell, 37, an unemployed waitress, was found Thursday in a blood-spattered Mission Street hotel room.

Her husband, Lawrence Campbell, a machinist, was booked by police on suspicion of murder. He denied any knowledge of the slaying.

Campbell telephoned Central Emergency Hospital for an ambulance. The ambulance crew found the woman's body, clad only in panties, lying on the floor in a corner of the Campbells' room. Her head was bruised and lacerated.

The officers said Campbell told them his wife was in bed and asleep when he retired about 8:30 p. m. He said he knew nothing more until he awoke at 5:30 a. m. and found his wife lying on the floor.

TRIAL

Defense Atty. Thomas Wofford fought unsuccessfully to prevent admission of Sammons' statement, arguing that the ruddy, gum-chewing defendant who sat stolidly through the reading of his purported words, was illiterate.

The sixth statement to identify Hurd as the actual killer was attributed to heavy-set Veldee Grady Scott, 29, and the seventh to James Forrester. But Hurd's own statement provided the high spot of the testimony on the fourth day of the unprecedented trial. Hundreds of curious, including 100 Negroes segregated in the gallery, had again packed the courtroom in the hot Greenville County Courthouse.

The statement of Fletcher Sweet was the last read Thursday and the nineteenth in the trial this far. It followed closely other statements made.

Sweet said he didn't actually see the shooting but that Marvin (Red) Fleming, another defendant, told him "we've done killed him—we can go home now."

Forestry Group Favors Constitutional Body

SAVANNAH, May 15 — (AP) — The Board of Directors of the Georgia Forestry Association, meeting at Hotel DeSoto here Thursday adopted resolutions favoring the establishment of a constitutional board of forestry.

The Directors also went on record as recommending that the State Forestry Department investigate the possibility of purchase of part of the Sand Hills region near Macon as a State forest. The tract contains some two and a half million acres of pine land.

NO JOKE

GermansNow Wear Clocks For Watches

BERLIN — (NANA) — In the midst of a recent political debate an alarm clock went off in somebody's pocket. Everybody thought it was some grown-up schoolboy who should know better.

But it wasn't.

It was a shy little old man whose face turned crimson as he became the center of attraction. Unhappily he explained that he hadn't meant to be facetious, but that he had no watch. He said he was tired of going around the streets having to ask the time. The alarm clock was the only small timepiece he had, so, he was carrying it in his pocket.

This is readily understood by Berliners, few of whom have watches. This lack of watches started two years ago because of the practice of the Russians in demanding that Germans hand over their watches.

After such looting activities were forbidden, the Russian G. Ivans became enthusiastic buyers of watches, offering fabulous sums of money, and most Berliners became equally enthusiastic sellers. That was when the black market started.

There once was a well-known joke in Germany which is now anything but a joke. A workman was moving a big grandfather clock, carrying it on his back. He met a friend who said happily: "That's a little large. Why don't you wear a wrist watch?"

The Germans haven't got around to wearing grandfather clocks yet, but this practice seems to be not far off.

Cairo Seeks City-Owned Electric Plant

Constitution State News Service.

CAIRO, May 15—Dissatisfied by what they term "obstructionist tactics" on the part of the Georgia Power Company, Cairo city councilmen have made plans to purchase or build a complete electric power plant.

The electric company, a subsidiary of the Florida Power Corporation, furnishes electric current to the city government which distributes it as a municipal project.

The city has been engaged in a long drawn-out battle with the firm for lower rates. The dispute was aired before the Georgia Public Service Commission in January.

Council voted unanimously to attempt to locate a complete plant through the War Assets Administration or to negotiate with private firms for construction of such a plant. City Manager D. P. Wolfer said he has been informed that one firm will build the plant and accept payment on terms from the plant's revenue.

City officials said several other Southwest Georgia cities are interested in the rate controversy and have indicated that if a private plant is built, they would like to be included in its output.

The city claims that J. F. Bailey, president of the power firm, informed the Public Service Commission at the hearing that the city would study its books with a view to determining for itself whether a rate reduction is possible. Bailey is now refusing to allow such a probe, they charge.

Evidence has been secured, councilmen claim, that the firm is furnishing power to retail consumers in Bainbridge, Ga., for approximately 60 percent of the cost to the city of Cairo.

European Boundaries

BERLIN — (AP) — Failure of the Foreign Ministers Conference to agree on Germany's borders hasn't stumped education officials in the American Military Government.

Faced with the problem of producing a school atlas for German children so that they could study geography, officials have in print an atlas without any delineation of continental European boundaries.

Students Bombed

RIO DE JANIERO, May 15—(AP) A dispatch of the Brazillian News Agency Asapress from Ponta Poro Thursday quoted the Paraguayan rebel garrison at Pedro Juan Caballero as saying Paraguayan Government planes had bombed a students' meeting at Concepcion. The students were reported to have been observing Paraguay's Independence Day when the attack was made.

HOLDUP NEMESIS DOES IT AGAIN

OMAHA, May 15—(AP)—Grocer Morris Leiben, an old hand at foiling holdup men, has done it again.

Back in 1939, two gunmen attempted to rob Leiben but fled when the grocer brushed past them, went outside and called for help.

Wednesday a young man walked into the store, thrust one hand into a jacket pocket and said: "Give me your money. I mean it."

Leiben picked up the meat knife from the butcher block, waved it menacingly and replied, "I mean it too." The would-be robber ran.

"This was nothing" commented Leiben afterwards. "I didn't even call police."

New Library, Radio Studio Planned for University

Constitution State News Service.

ATHENS, May 15—Plans for the addition of two wings, a library for the College of Business Administration, and an ultra-modern radio studio to the University of Georgia Commerce Journalism Building have been completed and bids are being received. These proposed additions, approved by the Board of Regents, will cost approximately $190,000.

The wings will be constructed on the rear of the present structure, and will be one story in height. Each unit will contain four class-rooms and two offices each.

A second floor will be added to the present auditorium of the building and will become one of the most modern radio studios ever constructed. It will contain a glassed-in studio, waiting room and a control booth, with a circular seating arrangement for 78 persons.

The space currently occupied by the Commerce Library and Journalism-Typographical Laboratory will house the University Printing Department and a complete photographic and engraving laboratory.

The Commerce-Journalism Building as it now exists was erected in 1928 at the approximate cost of $250,000.

MURDER

walked to the death scene was considered, however, in reports that she often strolled about the property, picking wild flowers.

Police Lt. Cal Cates said there were no signs that Mrs. Refoule had been dragged through the heavily wooded area that separates the house from the creek. Her body bore no scratches from briars, and Lt. Cates said if she had been carried through the woods it would have been necessary for a man to have carried her on his shoulders. To cross a dry creek bed immediately back of the house and then cross the wooded area with a heavy burden would have been an almost superhuman task, he said.

Furthermore, the rear exit, overlooking the woods and creek, is visible from Howell Mill Road, Cates pointed out, and if Mrs. Refoule had been slain inside the house, the killer would have had difficulty carrying her body outside without being seen by passers-by.

The dead-end road leading to the secluded creek bank is said to be frequently used and is described as a perfect lovers' rendezvous.

That area around the creek was said by neighbors to be a favorite spot of her husband's and used by him as a sort of outdoor studio.

Although an electric iron was found burning in the home when Mrs. Refoule's absence was first noticed, two disclosures tend to offset any theory that she may have been surprised at her ironing by the slayer.

Police said the position of the ironing board was such that if she had been at work there she would have been facing the only door to the second-story room. They also found a stack of neatly folded laundry, indicating that she had finished her ironing.

Members of the coroner's jury which recessed after hearing Dr. Jernigan's report and viewing the body with Coroner Ed Almand, were: E. M. Altman, foreman; A. C. Hopkins, Henry Brock, Richard Karns, Floyd Bryant and Jim Pulliam.

In his report to the coroner's jury, Dr. Jernigan said Mrs. Refoule's throat had bruises and rope marks from ear to ear and that there was a slight bruise on her right thigh and an excoriation on her left chest. Although her body bore several scratches, he said, there were no marks to indicate she had been dragged, and he expressed the opinion she had either been carried to the scene or was attacked there.

Nearly 2,000 persons drove by or stopped at the Howell Mill Road home Thursday.

Housewives of the neighborhood have become greatly alarmed over the slaying and are barricading their doors and putting guns handy lest the killer attempt to strike in the vicinity again.

George Haley, 71, a neighbor, recalled that many years ago he helped drag the body of a woman from Peachtree Creek near the exact spot where Mrs. Refoule was found. He said the mystery of that woman's death by drowning in the then higher creek waters was never solved.

Funeral services for Mrs. Refoule will be held at 9 a. m. Friday in the Cathedral of Christ the King, with Msgr. Joseph G. Cassidy officiating. Burial will be in West View Cemetery.

Surviving are her husband; a son, John Paul Refoule; her mother, Mrs. Margaret W. Alston; a sister, Mrs. Jesse M. Lewis, and a brother, W. O. Alston, Jr., all of Atlanta.

The two rings sought by police, with the aid of her husband, are a plain gold wedding band and an heirloom ring with two round diamonds and a square diamond in the center. It was a ring handed down in the Refoule family.

Asst. Chief Fitzgerald said Refoule told him his wife always took her rings off when working.

A bracelet and a string of pearls were found in her bedroom. Her pocketbook contained only a nickel and a penny, but Refoule said she never carried money but used checks in making purchases or paying bills.

Fitzgerald is holding a small hair ornament found not far from the body, where there were signs of a scuffle, and her shoes, which had been tied together on her feet by the laces. A small rope or handkerchief believed to have been used in strangulation was still sought.

The dazed husband who once was a French soldier and a prisoner of the Germans, refused to leave the studio home, built on the site of historic old Howell Mill, and asked police to keep morbid curiosity seekers off the property. It was estimated nearly 2,000 people drove by or stopped at the Howell Mill Road home Thursday.

the messages came, they were grim. There had been illnesses and no medicine, Red Cross boxes which had been rifled and many never received, desperate fear and ceasless worry.

Then in 1944, in mid-Winter Paul escaped from a German prison camp and made his way back to Orleans.

The Refoules came back to Atlanta in August, 1945, seeking refuge and rest. Jon, an alert and wordy 7, spoke only French. The three settled down with Mrs. Refoule's mother near Brookhaven, readjusting to serenity and security. This time Atlanta was home.

The last chapter of their lives together was written Wednesday night.

Jon, the boy, bounced home from school to find the radio playing, the electric iron burning through the ironing board, his mother nowhere to be found. And for this reality there was no day of coming peace.

BUDGET

taries and law clerks of Federal judges.

Increase from $17,638,000 to $36,308,000 the allotment for acquisition and installation of air-navigation facilities.

Increase by $1,500,000 the Civil Aeronautics Administration's fund for technical development.

Boost from $32,500,000 to $65,000,000 the allotment for the Federal-aid airport program.

Increase by $3,190,000 the allotment for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Earlier the House had refused to include $31,281,200 to finance during the fiscal year starting July 1 the State Department's foreign cultural relations program. this program which includes the "Voice of America" broadcasts to Russia and other countries, has not been authorized by law, but separate legislation legalizing it is pending before the Foreign Affairs Committee.

While the House acted, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved legislation to provide $135,637,658 to carry a score of Government Departments and Agencies through the fiscal year ending June 30.

The bill also authorizes the Treasury to cancel a $641,832,080 indebtedness of the Commodity Credit Corporation. This Agency pays off losses suffered on subsidy and price-support programs.

The bill carries an increase of $23,240,000 over the amount voted by the House.

Nearly half the funds carried in the deficiency bill are for the Post Office Department, and are needed to meet losses attributed to an increase in the amount of mail handled.

The Committee "vigorously" condemned what it called "the false propaganda disseminated by certain Postmasters throughout the country blaming Congress for the lack of sufficient funds to meet their expenditures."

"The truth of the matter is that their plight can be directly attributed to their failure to comply with the restrictions imposed on expenditures" set forth in the Postal laws, the Committee report said.

The Senate sliced $2,000,000 off the amount approved by the House for general Postal Service in First and Second Class Offices.

It also eliminated entirely House-approved amounts of $600,000 for establishment of air-navigation facilities, and $160,000 for their maintenance and operation.

Principal additions over the amount voted by the House:

1. A $6,000,000 fund to carry the Farm Labor Program through the calendar year 1947. Recently extended by Congress, the program covers costs of transporting farm labor brought in from Mexico and other countries.

2. A $20,000,000 fund for dismantling, transporting and reerecting surplus buildings constructed during the war, to be used as classrooms and laboratories by colleges in training veterans under the GI Bill of Rights. The item does not cover any housing facilities.

Also Thursday President Truman sent to Congress a request for $140,507,000 more for the Veterans' Administration to spend in the new fiscal year.

This agency reshuffled its budget, and found that it could get along with less money for some items, but needed more for others. Thus the largest increase asked $295,280,000 for schooling veterans, is larger than the net increase sought for the entire agency.

College Park Residents Form New Civic Club

The formation of a new civic club composed of residents of College Park was announced Thursday.

The purpose of the organization, named the Progressive Civic Club of College Park, is "mutual aid and civic betterment."

Temporary officers, including Marion E. Brooks, were appointed until permanent officers could be chosen.

A picnic lunch will be held May 24 for persons interested, in the vicinity of 315 W. Oxford Ave., with cooking facilities to be furnished by the club.

WOULD-BE YEGG FOILED BY SAFE

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," seems to be the motto of an energetic burglar who tried some unsuccessful dirty work on the safe of the Cunningham Motor Service, 496 Piedmont Ave., N. E., Thursday night.

Detectives H. D. Henshaw and C. C. Camp said the burglar, who moved the heavy safe a good 50 feet away, tried to crack it by manipulating the tumblers.

That didn't work.

He tried to take the hinge pins out.

That didn't work.

He tried to burn it with an acetelyne torch.

That didn't work.

And then he gave up in disgust.

Fire Escape Harness Seen In Action at Capitol

By JOHN COURIC

While State employees and officials looked on, three Atlantans Thursday demonstrated a portable safety mechanism for escaping from burning buildings.

Constitution Staff Photo—Ryan Sanders.

O. M. BROWN
Demonstrates Fire Escape.

The demonstration took place at the State Office Building and originated ironically in the sixth floor office once occupied by the late W. D. Dickerson, who with his wife and two children died in the Winecoff Hotel blaze, Dec. 7, 1946. Dickerson was Director of the Unemployment Compensation Division of the State Department of Labor.

O. M. Brown, Atlanta engineer, made the first descent on a fire resistant webb belt which may be secured to any stationary object in a room and dropped to the ground through a window. Encased in a harness attached to the webb belt, Brown wore another harness on his back. Strapped in this was a doll belonging to his four-year-old niece.

"Peggy Ann, my niece, wanted to make the test," Brown commented, "but she is ill. The doll is her substitute."

Any descent on the web belt is controlled by a hand mechanism accompanying the user on the downward trip. This permits slowing down or a complete halt.

By use of this, Brown was able to halt on another trip at the fourth floor and allow his brother, James B. Brown, to attach himself with another harness.

At the third floor, another stop was made. Jack Beckham, a bystander who volunteered for the demonstration, gripped one of the harnesses and the descent began again.

Harnesses for "Brownie's Safety Fire Escape" are donned in the same manner as coveralls without legs or sleeves. The hand-controlled mechanism can be set to reach a maximum speed of 10 miles an hour.

Should a person faint or become unconscious, the drop is halted temporarily because an unconscious person would automatically release the speed knob. After the momentary halt, the descent is continued again at a slower speed. This prevents broken bones.

Those remaining conscious may adjust the speed as they desire.

The entire mechanism with webbing long enough for a 16-story building weighs only 10 pounds, 5 ounces. It comes in a plastic case and Brown hopes to sell it to individuals and hotels.

For higher buildings additional webbing may be attached to the equipment.

$12,500 in Damages Awarded Railroader

C. B. Pritchard, of Atlanta, who sought $200,000 damages for injuries allegedly received when two Atlantic Coast Line Railroad trains collided near Talbotton, June 17, 1946, will receive $12,500 from the railroad company, according to a jury finding.

The jury in U. S. District Court Thursday, following a hearing before U. S. District Judge E. Marvin Underwood, rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the smaller amount.

Pritchard was fireman of a locomotive.

Pritchard sued the company for negligence, charging spinal injuries, received testimony said, when he jumped from a moving train just before its collision with an oncoming train on the same track, permanently incapacitating him.

STRANGE FRUIT IN NAGASAKI

TOKYO, May 15—(AP)—Kyodo News Agency said Thursday deformed pumpkins, twe-bulbed onions and two-headed eggplants had been discovered at atom-bombed Nagasaki.

Kyodo said Nagasaki prefectual agricultural experts were experimenting with a variety of vegetables in atomized soil and the results were being followed also by a U. S. research team.

Earlier reports of freak babies born to survivors of the atom bomb have been denied.

Nicola De Flue, Swiss, Now a Catholic Saint

VATICAN CITY, May 15—(AP)—Nicola De Flue, Swiss hero and hermit of the 15th century, took his place Thursday among the saints of the Catholic Church.

Pope Pius XII inscribed De Flue's name in the Book of Saints at a canonization ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica attended by thousands of Swiss pilgrims.

Michigan Couple Freed in Death Of His First Wife

DETROIT, May 15—(AP)—Louis V. Thompson, wealthy Highland Park automobile dealer, and his second wife, Helen Budnik Thompson, were freed Thursday of murder and conspiracy charges in the death of Lydia Thompson, his first wife.

Common pleas Judge Neal Fitzgerald granted a defense motion that the charges be dismissed on the ground that the prosecution had not proved the slaying of the Russian-born first Mrs. Thompson occurred in Wayne County.

Wayne County Prosecutor James M. McNally admitted the State's testimony against Thompson and his second wife, his former secretary, whom he married four months after the slaying, was "meager."

The first Mrs. Thompson's mutilated body was found in October, 1945, in suburban Oakland County.

The court's action came 19 months after the finding of Lydia Thompson's hacked body. It was the 12th day of the examination at which 46 witnesses were heard and 69 exhibits introduced by the prosecution.

Truman Declares 'No Collapse' If Greed Is Balked

WASHINGTON, May 15—(UP) President Truman told his news conference Thursday that if the control of the nation can be kept out of the hands of greedy people, there will be no economic collapse.

As he talked to reporters, Mr. Truman awaited the arrival of a price reduction plan drafted by Chester A. Bowles, former Price Administrator, and a group of associates who have been studying the price situation.

Mr. Truman had not seen the plan. A reporter told him that Bowles and his associates said there would be an economic "bust."

Bowles and his associates urged immediate Government emergency action to stave off the crisis.

Mr. Truman said, as he has almost weekly for the past two months, that he does not believe a depression is necessary, or inevitable.

If we follow the rules of common sense and do not let the greedy people get control of the country there will be neither bust nor boom, he said.

He pointed out that despite the co-operation of some people in reducing prices, this co-operation still is insufficient, particularly in the Congress.

Mr. Truman said commodity prices are still too high. This situation constitutes the nation's major economic malady, he said.

His news conference was good humored but largely newsless.

He turned down most questions on current domestic problems.

Polio Pamphlet For School Children

As part of a nationwide campaign to acquaint parents with facts about polio, the Georgia State Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will distribute a pamphlet about the disease to every school child in Georgia, Chapter Chairman William K. Jenkins said Thursday.

Entitled "A Message to Parents about Infantile Paralysis," the bulletin lists polio precautions to be observed during the Summer epidemic season, describes possible symptoms of infantile paralysis and offers practical advice for guidance of parents in times of epidemics.

Distribution of the pamphlets will be completed by the end of the school term in June — the month which generally sees an upswing in polio cases, that continues until early September. Last year was the largest polio year in three decades, with 25,204 cases reported in the country, Jenkins said.

Bribe Report Comes In Philippine-Quiz

MANILA, May 15—(AP)—A former Cebu army base superintendent told a Philippines House Investigating Committee Thursday he was offered a $7,500 bribe to approve sale of surplus C rations, and that pressure was put on him to give preference to a Cebu senator's relatives.

The witness, Natalio Bacalso, declared large quantities of commodities were sold to "a fake co-operative" whose board members included a provincial governor and a newspaper editor.

Mariano J. Cuenco, Senator from Cebu, said the charges did not involve him, that he was in the United States as a member of the Philippines delegation to the United Nations at the time, and that he was prepared to identify "those who have become rich overnight."

The committee is investigating wholesale pilfering in U. S. Army bases from supplies destined to be turned over as surplus to the Philippines Government.

Kentucky Woman Heads National Society,, DCW

Other officers elected at the Society's fourteenth annual meeting Wednesday include: Mrs. Philip W. Hiden, Newport News, Va., First Vice President; Mrs. Benjamin Wyche, Charlotte, N. C., Organizing Secretary, and Mrs. Ernest F. Dow, Newtonville, Mass., Registrar.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Thompson Blazes the Trail

Although he was forced into it by a recalcitrant Legislature, Acting Gov. Thompson is doing a capable job in reducing State spending and his success gives rise to the hope that the economies effected can be of a permanent nature.

Already approximately 200 employees have been eliminated from the State pay roll. Many of these held purely political jobs—the 35 State Highway Department inspectors, for instance. All told, the Highway Department has released 127 employees and the Revenue Department 72. Officials of both departments say the reduction in force will not impair their operating efficiency. Other departments will submit reports of reductions in a few days.

It long has been a practice in Georgia—and in most other States, probably—for an incoming Governor to sweep the State pay roll clean in a magnificent and widely heralded display of economy. Usually, however, one found that when the hullabaloo had passed a few months later, friends of the new administration had been appointed equal to if not in excess of the number of those discharged.

Acting Gov. Thompson's economies are, of necessity, being effected on a permanent basis. And, indeed, there can be no reason for regarding the reductions as a temporary expedient if, as the department heads assert, the functions of government can be carried on with unimpaired efficiency.

The Acting Governor hopes to cut 1,000 employees off the State pay roll by July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. Many doubt that he can succeed in lopping off 10 percent of the total number of State employees. But even if he can eliminate only 500 without interfering with orderly operation of the government, the State will be better off by approximately $1,000,000 per year. If, on the other hand, 1,000 can be dismissed, the estimated saving to the people of Georgia will be $2,000,000.

While the plight of those released through no fault of their own is deserving of some sympathy, they surely can understand that the people of Georgia are not obligated to provide them with jobs which are unnecessary and do not contribute to the efficient functioning of the State.

It is ironic that the General Assembly, in an effort to hamstring his administration by refusing to grant Acting Gov. Thompson a new appropriations bill, should have placed him in the role of a trail-blazer in effecting economies destined to accustom the public to the same State services at less expense. The Constitution believes that the public, enlightened by the Administration's apparent success, will demand similar economies of future administrations. And for that the voters of the State will have Acting Gov. Thompson to thank.

File Suit Against the Ordinary

Recently a Georgia ordinary issued a marriage license to a 61-year-old man who a year before had seduced a child in the eighth grade, and a Georgia justice of the peace married the lecherous sexagenarian to the child of 14.

The Atlanta Constitution cannot condemn too severely the actions of both officials as being evil and wicked in the sight of God and man.

There is just one law that can be used.

The ordinaries of the State are responsible and are bonded. They are so bonded to prevent just such evils.

They may be sued and their bondsmen are responsible. If the parents do not sue then any interested party may sue. The ordinary is required in all cases of doubt to do much more than to have an opinion the parties "look to be" old enough. The sum of $500 may be recovered and the money goes to the school fund unless the parents file the suit. We suggest to the church and civic club people of the county involved that they file such a suit on this case and on all others which may be discovered. See Georgia Laws 1939, pages 221, 223, Section I, Amending Code Section 53-208 of 1933. The responsibility clearly is on the ordinary.

We hope the next Legislature will abolish the "marrying squires" racket. These men do not have to marry old goats of 61 to a child. They can refuse. But the ordinary and his bondsmen are responsible. We hope the good people of the county will sue now and in the future when such wicked and corrupt marriages are given license.

Sense About Food Prices---

Whatever ideas one may have about the chain food stores, none can deny their operation is efficient and that they have brought cheaper food to the tables of the nation than was ever before possible. They were able to do this by reducing their own operating costs and by selling a great volume of food. Their profits per item were small, but by selling many items they made a profit.

Now comes the A. & P. chain in a public statement, based on sworn figures. During the past five years the net profit has averaged about one cent in each dollar of sales. In other words, every dollar spent by a housewife netted the Company one cent profit.

If the Company were to operate without this profit, the savings per day to the average American family would be about four cents.

Obviously, food can be sold cheaper only when it can be bought cheaper.

Prices are coming down. There is evidence at hand that there will be no depression, but that a sharp recession in some fields will come by Summer and endure to the end of the year. There is no cause for fear or panic. General business will continue good, with unemployment a "spotty" problem.

What we have got to recognize is that with agricultural prices controlled and guaranteed by the Government and the rest of the economy free of all controls, we cannot accomplish a quick solution.

Nothing better illustrates that fact than the food store statement.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Acting Governor

Editor Constitution: I note from Act. Gov. Thompsons speech in Valdosta and at his home-coming barbecue he is now ready for peace and harmony. If he had felt that way at the start he would have accomplished a lot more. If he really wanted peace why did he veto the white primary bill? He said on several occasions he would sign this bill. If he wanted peace why did he call a convention in Macon last week and call it a Democratic convention, which he knows is not legal as every one else knows. Why is he firing all the Talmadge men—they have as much right to work there as he has, as long as they do their duty. He is not Governor, he is just acting Governor. It does not look like there will be any peace for him as long as he has "Little Ed" as his advisor.

Appraisal

Editor Constitution: I want to express my thanks and appreciation for your excellent editorial on Dr. Newton, appearing in The Constitution under date of May 8. Those of us who work with him know his worth and sincerity and it is good to have an impartial appraisal. Personally and on behalf of every member of our church to whom I have talked, may I say, "Thank you."

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned.

The National Guard

Editor Constitution: Ralph T. Jones' article, "Seeking To Recreate the National Guard," is indeed an excellent one. In addition to being extremely accurate in detail, it expresses the thoughts and words of thousands of former men and officers of the National Guard.

Those of us who, during the so-called years of peace between World War I and World War II, spent our evenings, weekends and vacations training our men and ourselves, feel justly proud of the accomplishments of the National Guard during the recent conflict. We feel that the peacetime National Guard produced units "fit to fight" when the national emergency arose. These units trained men to such a state the individual was much better qualified to defend himself in battle. Consequently, the lives of many were saved by this training.

The postwar National Guard could easily be the next best thing to universal military training if, as Mr. Jones so clearly stated, it is properly supported by the local communities.

I deeply appreciate the article. Persons interested need not be delayed by writing to the Pentagon Building, they need only to apply at the State Armory on Confederate Avenue, S. E., any Monday evening.

Still Professor?

Editor Constitution: Monday Act. Gov. Thompson stated in Washington that the Talmadge faction in Georgia no longer exists. Now, an absent-minded professor might could have put that idea across in "the little red schoolhouse" or at least he could erase his mistakes at the end of the class. However, since he is occupying the gray stone building, by accident, on Capitol Hill, such statements should be more carefully weighed before expecting the customer to take such a short order. If not, the "professor" may find his teachings rather questioned on next election day. Frankly, he can search through his library, or any other library, and still not be able to read on the line, or between the lines, any hint that the next Governor of Georgia will be picked by the Supreme Court or the Hon. E. D. Rivers. There will still be a teacher shortage in 1948 and some of us think that after that time "M. E." will be doing less talking and dictating but a lot more crayon pushing. Any mistakes made on the blackboard can be erased after class. We just hope he will not take his spite out on the "kids."

The Modern Rip Van Winkle

Mr. Carroll Reece, Republican National Committeeman, sniffing the air like the legendary foxhound of his native East Tennessee hills, Old Limber, has babbled badly, a foxhound sin, and should be taken up from the cast.

Mr. Reece declares in a public speech that many years ago the Soviet Gestapo planted spies in this country to write history books. In these books they led this country off on into strange pastures, says Mr. Reece, by pointing out that the workings of the economic system are tied in with the social and political systems.

This, says Mr. Reece, is an alien doctrine, and needs to be purged.

Mr. Reece was perfectly serious.

It would be very humorous if it were not so very tragic.

Mr. Reece really thinks that.

And so do some of his Republican associates, namely those in control.

It is this fact which makes the prospect of a Republican victory in 1948 frightening and disturbing. Were it not for this grievous flaw in the Republican thinking, few would be disturbed at the prospect.

Political Economy The Reds, as Mr. Reece terms them, have done many things. But they have not tampered with the history books.

Mr. Reece's statement is ridiculous. I would like to say something more kind about it. But it is not possible. It is simply ridiculous.

Mr. Reece must know that for about half the nineteenth century the science of economics was referred to not as "economics," but as the science of "political economy."

It was not until the latter part of the nineteenth century the adjective was dropped.

It was realized then that the economy of this, or any other nation, operates in a social and political environment which inevitably conditions it.

It is startling and dismaying to find the head of the Republican Party blaming the Communists of Russia for the idea that the ability of the people to have a job, to eat, have clothes to wear and to have recreation is separate and removed, with no connection whatever, from the fields of politics and social welfare.

"Rip" Mr. Reece has not lifted up his eyes to his own hills. He has not noted, apparently, that this country now has become a nation of urban population clustered about industrial developments. When he was a boy the contrary was true.

Has he not noted what has happened to the young men who once worked the sloping hill farms of his native East Tennessee? Has he not seen how many took the pike that led to town and didn't come back?

Does he see any more of the wild, rabbity boys and shy, doe-like girls back in the coves and hollows of his mountains?

He does not.

Rip Van Winkle slept but 20 years.

Mr. Reece has been sleeping longer. Someone should wake him up and, in kindness, tell him that it isn't now, and never has been possible, to separate the economic system from the social and political fields.

No, no, Mr. Reece. The Reds have done many things.

But, not that.

Nothing Henry Wallace ever said was as fantastic as that!

Sen. Taft You note in the Congress the same sort of conflict. Sen. Robert Taft has introduced housing, health and educational bills. He announced to his fellow Republicans they represented, in his opinion, the minimum concessions to public welfare the party could make.

James D. Kem, wealthy Senator from Missouri, opposed it, saying the Government should have not any connection whatever with the problems of health, housing and education, and should give up what connections it now has. Sen. Taft replied the people in the lower economic levels were entitled to look to Washington for some assistance.

But nothing came of it.

Neither pushed his proposals. Whatever the merits of the Taft bills for housing, health and education, it is apparent he is not now, and has not been, pushing them with any slight degree of his power and prestige.

The cynical ones know the answer.

The people will be most interested in Federal aid in election year when the candidates are out on the hustings.

Sen. Taft will wait until then, hoping to match the Democratic promises.

Most Informative Volume of 'Em All

Do you hunger for success as an answerer to quiz programs? Are you ambitious to become known, in your own circle, as the best informed man of the group? Do you want to stun your acquaintances with the variety of information ever handy on your tongue tip?

Do you seek to become the possessor of a wealth of information of practically no value in daily life? Do you, in short, want to be so irritating in your conversation that people will shun you like a boring plague? Then study the World Almanac.

Now this is not a free advertisement. I feel no call to push sales of the World Almanac. I get no commission for such sales from any dealer in books. I am simply overawed by the quantities of immaterial information that can be culled out of that book. To say nothing of its very high value as a reference work.

For Instance: For instance, is the 35th anniversary of your marriage drawing near? Do you wish to make the proper present to your wife? Do you want to know the official designation of a 35th wedding anniversary. Look in the World Almanac. And you will then know you should present her with something made of coral. Just as you gave her pearls on the 30th anniversary and will, if the financial luck holds out, signalize the 50th anniversary with gold and the 60th and 75th, both of 'em, with diamonds.

Would you be interested in knowing how many merchants selling hats, gloves and furs went into bankruptcy in 1935? The World Almanac has the information. For the entire country it was, that year, 93.

What is the basis of currency in Persia? It is the rial, worth in 1937 approximately eight and a half American cents. So says the Almanac.

And Estonians measure their earnings in kroons, while in Ecuador it is the number of sucres a man holds which determines his wealth. Or in Nicaragua it is the cordoba.

Documentary Want to quote the Declaration of Independence or refer, accurately, to the Constitution of the United States? Both are given, in full text, in the World Almanac.

Or do you want to know the location, age, size of student body and name of president or principal of any American college? Look for it in the Almanac. It will tell you, too, the colors to which any student gives his collegiate allegiance.

How many families reside in New York State as of 1930? How many married men and how many single men—and the same data in re women—in New York State? The information is there.

What is the fastest time made in crossing the Atlantic Ocean? How long did it take Columbus to cross? How long for Lindbergh?

What horse races are run on what tracks? And the names of the winners for the past 10 years? You'll find 'em all there.

Statistics on baseball and on the six-day bicycle races. Automobile speed records.

The number of murders in the larger cities, together with the number solved and those which remain mysteries.

Church Members How many church members were there in Atlanta in 1930? How many in Canton, Ohio, and how many in Passaic, N. J.? Or any other city?

What is the percentage of illiterates in any of the States? What was the coal production and how many men were killed in getting it out of the ground?

How many individuals in this country had an income of a million or more in 1921?

What day of the week will be May 16 in the year 1968?

In short, what you can't learn from the World Almanac is rare and involved information.

But, are such facts worth your time to study?

ALTAR STAIRS — By John Marvin Rast

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, writing in the magazine "Think," on life's irreducible minimum, asserts it to be belief in oneself, in men, and in God. He urges, "Do not be blind to reality but doubt your doubts first. . . . Be positive rather than negative." There is indeed so much to life that we cannot disbelieve that faith, not doubt, should be our starting point. Better still, it should be, can be, the set of our souls, subduing doubts as the sun drives before it the morning mists.

"My faith looks up to Thee,
Thou Lamb of Calvary . . .

O let me from this day

Fear Basis of Lies

One lazy Spring day a banker and a doctor walked together on their way home to lunch, and their conversation drifted into a discussion of liars.

"I'd go to hell," said the doctor, "before I'd tell a lie."

"If I'm any judge," said the banker, "you've just told one."

"That depends," said the doctor, "on your definition. Remember what Voltaire said. You can't discuss anything intelligently until you define your terms. According to my definition, a lie is a deliberate effort to deceive — and I certainly made no effort to deceive you. In the first place, I wouldn't suggest going to a region that doesn't exist. In the second place, I give you credit for enough intelligence to know my remark was facetious. So it was not a lie, but a very common and meaningless exaggeration. I meant only that I abominate lying and don't make a practice of it."

Whatever you may think of the doctor's other remarks, his definition was certainly correct. A lie is a deliberate effort to deceive.

The wild animal's protective coloration is meant to deceive, but he isn't a liar. Nature matched his color to his background, and he uses his camouflage instinctively without malice aforethought.

The definition of lying helps to explain liars.

Necessity is the mother of invention, and lies are inventions. Most liars think their lies necessary.

Nearly all liars can be classified in a few groups: rogues who are trying to swindle somebody; rogues or snobs or simpletons who are trying to seem what they are not; people who are ashamed and people who are afraid.

(The honest man who respects himself and isn't afraid of anybody never has any inclination to lie.)

Fear doubtless prompts more lies than anything else. A man who has been up to something is afraid of what his wife will say or do if she learns the truth; she invents convincing tales to explain social faults and oversights that would offend her friends or acquaintances.

Children lie, as a rule, because they are ashamed of what they have done or afraid of punishment.

Parson Weems' tale of George and the cherry tree had a moral, but failed to mention the better one. Little George had no reason to lie, for he knew from experience that his dad wouldn't whale the lard out of him if he told the truth.

If a man tells the truth about a wreck, even though a lie would save him from a jail sentence or a $5,000 damage claim, he may expect Junior to tell the truth when his only reward will be a beating.

But the ordinary kid will lie when he is scared, and the way to keep him from lying is to give him nothing to fear.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

"WORST IN GEORGIA"

(Cobb County Times)

We've come to the place that we can't ride over U. S. 41 north without writing an editorial about that highway.

"The worst road in Georgia!" That's the description applied to this highway by a fellow who visited the Times office the other day.

The shoe pretty well fits.

The most crooked, most narrow, roughest and hence most dangerous—yet the busiest road in this area.

Compared to Highway 41, U. S. 27 from Chattanooga to Rome, is a straight-a-way and a boulevard.

Residents in those cities on "41" must keep plugging for its improvement else they'll lose the tourists and the tourists' trade.

But a much more urgent reason for improving Highway "41" is to save the many lives that are being lost on its curves and hills.

The GOP Could Use A Man Like This One

An Indiana manufacturer advertises a "brain tonic" guaranteed to "end baldness, increase memory, insure eyesight, impart sound sleep, remove gray hair, stop falling hair and relieve dandruff."

Apparently the manufacturer has another formula which he recommends for leprosy, chilblains and housemaid's knee.

This is an age of specialization. No longer do itinerant medicat men offer remedies to cure anything, including the purchaser's credulity.

Time was when the list of ailments for which a medicine was "recommended" was limited solely by imagination and the size of the label.

But that is a thing of the past. The one-bottle medicine cabinet has gone the way of the mustache cup and 12-button shoes.

A modern citizen would no more think of relying on the same remedy for sciatica and athlete's foot than he would of driving with a midiron or wearing a morning coat in the afternoon.

This is an age of specialization and the era of cure-alls is ended . . . except, of course, in campaign years, when the formula is still applied to political platforms.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

GOP Anxious To Close Session

WASHINGTON—After getting away to a slow start, Congress is now making a concerted drive to wind up its business in time for adjournment by the middle of July.

To this end, Republican leaders have set a tentative date for ending the session around July 10. There is little expectation that the session will extend beyond July 20, at the latest, assuming that no national emergency arises in the meantime.

The drive to bring the session to an early close is in marked contrast with the record of the past six or eight years. During that time Congress remained in almost continuous session.

Adjournments were few and far between. And such recesses as Congress took were for brief periods, usually coming at the time of a national campaign.

Watch Ends There is a motive behind the determination of Republican majority leaders to break up the present session as early as possible. It is interesting to consider what it is.

Throughout the war period, Congress was kept in session by its leaders for the announced purpose of co-operating with the war effort. Its presence was not always needed, but the leaders insisted on remaining on the job to take care of any emergency legislation that might be required.

Before that, elements opposed to President Roosevelt demanded that Congress remain constantly in Washington as a means of keeping watch on our war moves. The late President was openly accused by his enemies of plotting to take us into the war. Hence his congressional opponents were reluctant to leave Washington and give him a free hand in dealing with the complicated foreign situation.

And even prior to the outbreak of the war in Europe congressional critics of the administration were distrustful enough of the New Deal to make them want to stay in session. They wanted to keep an eye on what was going on.

Actually, there was no need for Congress to engage in the long, protracted sessions that were common during that period. Certainly that was true, considering the fact that the President always had it in his power to reconvene Congress at any time he saw fit.

Sounding Board It is proper, therefore, to look for other reasons as the motivating influence behind the almost continuous sessions we have had in recent years.

The best answer to this is the sounding board Congress offers for getting its views across to the country. A speech made in Congress always gets far more attention nationally than it would, for instance, if it were delivered in his home State or town.

The difference lies in the greater stage Congress offers for putting over political propaganda. Often it is the difference between Podunk and Washington, the nerve center of the nation.

Capital observers have long suspected that the main reason for the prolonged sessions we have had in recent years was to give Republicans, who were in the minority, an opportunity to command a better stage setting for their attacks on the administration. The party in power is always the target of attack by the minority, and so it was advantageous for the Republican opposition to keep Congress in session as a means of carrying on its attack.

It needs only to be pointed out in this connection that the Republicans were primarily responsible for the sessions of Congress going the lengths they did in the past.

In the Spot But now the situation is reversed in that the Republicans, for the first time in some 15 years, are in majority control of Congress. Consequently they have found themselves the targets of attack rather than the attackers.

It is a new experience for the Republicans, made none too comforting by the fact that most of the attacks have been anything but mild. What is all the more galling about it is that they have come in large measure from Republican sources.

Newspapers and other publications which in the past have shown pronounced Republican leanings have been blasting away at the new Congress almost from the start for its ineffectiveness. It has left the majority leadership wondering what has struck it.

As a result Republican leaders are anxious to bring the session to a close as early as possible. They see this as a means of taking the leadership off a hot spot. They are hoping that once Congress is removed from the picture the spotlight will again be turned on the Truman administration. In that way they hope to regain some of the lost ground the party has suffered in recent months—ground that is reflected in the striking upsurge in Truman sentiment.

All of this may tend to explain in the determination of Republican leaders to bring about an adjournment in July. If things were going better, we might expect to see the session go on indefinitely.

"Police, called to quell riot in home of G. L. Spraberry, learn fight broke up reunion of 11 old friends of more than 40 years' standing."—News brief.

Sometimes we sigh for days gone by, for friends of long ago,
We wonder what became of Dot, of Harry, Jane or Joe;
The bosom pals, the boys and gals who helped us as we sowed
The little seeds of foolish deeds along youth's thoughtless road.

The dreams we dreamed back there, it seemed, were always silver-lined,
No self-control enmeshed the soul, no trouble stirred the mind;
The friends we had, both good and bad, made up a pleasant blend,
And bad and good, we swore we would be friends until the end.

Now, just a few of those we knew, are ever heard about,
We know that Dot has gone to pot and Harry's old and stout,
And though we knew that Joe went through a season in the pen,
We later learned that he had earned an honored name again.

And so it goes, the Harrys, Joes, the friends of fairer weather,
All drift apart, and if they're smart they'll never get together—
It's better we just let them be and keep the old illusion
Than search them out and bring about the utmost in confusion.

HAROLD MARTIN

A Little Change Of Scene

I had been meaning to mention this before, so that if there were any of you who wanted me to take a message to a friend or son or brotner overseas I could do it, but the time kept slipping by and I was concerned with other matters and I didn't get around to it. So here it is late in the week and I am just now realizing that on Sunday afternoon I will be out at the airport, telling my numerous brood goodby, headed for the Pacific islands again.

I don't know exactly how it came about. I was sitting in the office one afternoon, beating out a piece about cats, or arrowheads, or fish-worms, or something profound like that when the phone rings and it is Jack Alexander, up at the Saturday Evening Post, in Philadelphia.

'How's That?' "Look," he said, "how would you like to go out to the Pacific for about six months?"

"Jiggle your phone," I said. "It sounded to me as if you asked how would I like to go out to the Pacific for about six months."

"That's what I did say," he said. "We've been thinking about it and we believe you might pick up a few stories out there, now that things have settled down. How about it?"

"Well," I said, "I guess it suits me all right, though to tell the truth if I had my choice of a long trip I don't know whether I'd choose the islands or not. So, I'll say yes, but I'll have to ask the boss."

"Which boss," he said. "Your wife or your employer."

"Both," I said.

So I went down to see the Major, and he said O. K., if I wanted to go, go ahead.

Quick Sale So that was that, and I went home and asked Mama if it was all right with her if I went on a little trip for about six months and she said: "Oh, Lord, here we go again. Where to?" And I told her the Pacific and she said well, it was all right with her, if I wanted to, but please try to make it back by Christmas because the children were peculiar in that they seemed to like to have a Daddy around on Christmas.

So I sat down and thought about it for awhile and I thought of all the fun I'd miss, being away from home this Summer, without ever getting to go up to the mountains and lie around the shack letting the breeze blow through my whiskers and I didn't much want to go.

Then I thought about the places and the people—the way the sun looks as it sets off Eva Air Base, out from Honolulu, and the sound of the people singing their funny pidgin-English songs, in the evening in the little villages of the Marshalls. And the look of the lonely seas when you stand on the little strip of beach at Guadalcanal and look off up The Slot toward the linked green islands where the PT boats used to hang out, ambushing the Jap troop ships coming down. And the green hills of Saipan and the red hills and tall pines of Okinawa, and the smell and color of the Moro markets in the little villages on the island across the straits from Zamboanga. And I wanted to see the black ash beaches of Iwo again, and the ugly hump of Suribachi, and all the other islands, palm-fringed and beautiful or gaunt and bare-swept, that the men, who were over there knew.

Bright Memory So I knew that I did want to go, no matter how strong a doubt might lurk at the back of the mind. And a funny thing about it is—most of the ex-GIs I've talked to about it would like to go back again, too. They've forgotten the heat and the boredom and the loneliness, for they are already beginning to look back on the places through the rosy glasses of memory.

And so am I, and it is only now and then I stop to think that six months is a long, long time. But I'll be awful busy, trying to dig up the stuff the Post wants, and trying to find, somewhere, as often as I can, a piece for The Constitution. So maybe I won't have time to get lonesome, and to wish that I'd stayed at home.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

A Political Convenience?

If the mysterious guru letters which have bobbed up vaguely in the political career of Henry Wallace are authentic, then all speculation would seem to be idle and petty as to whether this man is a Communist. His open cordiality to Communists and his current partiality to Soviet Russia could be no more than a momentary political convenience in the aspiration of a messianic fumbler toward an idealistic brotherhood of man and the purification of the whole human race through suffering, philosophy and politics.

A GURU in India is literally a teacher. The Oriental philosphy known as yoga, a heritage from the ancient Aryans, is taught by gurus and requires years of deep study. It will be futile to try to give a capsule explanation. Some American exponents of yoga refrain from discussing it because it has been associated in the Western mind with magic, fire-walking, fire-eating and other quackery. Persons and publishers who would not dare ridicule other religions or philosophies almost invariably ridicule yoga. To affirm a belief in yoga is to invite the persecution of ridicule. For this reason, an American politician who should publicly declare even a studios interest in this outlandish philosophy would assume a handicap that would be politically fatal.

The guru letters in the opinion of one authority on yoga, who desires to be anonymous for the reasons stated above, do not indicate a mastery or understanding of the philosophy. He says they make nothing but juvenile nonsense to him. They do contain some terms that are familiar to students of yoga. Krishna, for example, who is mentioned, was a vedic, or Aryan, deity, with the proviso, however, that a deity, in this philosophy, is the embodiment of a principle.

The letters contain references to books by Prof. Nicholas Constantin Roerich, who is the addressee of some of them. Prof. Roerich's books deal with Oriental, intellectual and spiritual subjects. The professor, who is addressed as Guru, has been a student of these subjects for many years. He is primarily a painter but his devotion to a community of the whole world, at least in some phases of human interest, is suggested by his "pacts" and "banners of peace" mentioned in his biography. In 1934, the year after Wallace became Secretary of Agriculture, he appointed Roerich to lead an expedition through China and Mongolia "in search of drouth-resisting grasses for America."

YOGA ignores such mundane and momentary barriers to the sublime, ultimate state of being as national lines. A contemporary American politician obviously would thwart himself if he were to propose the immediate or even the eventual obliteration of nations. Yoga also abjures or certainly denies the importance of material possession. Here again the politician would challenge the strong sense of property in the American voters from the rich man down to the owner of a family dwelling or an old automobile.

It is unlike the yogi, as of now, at any rate, to thrust their ideas on others. They are reticent rather than propagandists and crusaders for their faith and they hold that only the blessed and privileged elect, meaning themselves and a few applicants, accepted with discrimination, are qualified to understand.

Wallace has talked and written much but he has always seemed to be withholding some of his thoughts. If these are truly his letters, he would seem to have had hours when he was displeased with Soviet Russia. So, material Communism, as seen in Russia, may be as purely an incidental phase of the progress toward sublimity as the dirty half-mile past the town dump on the way to the annual revival of the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise.

We have had nobody like this strange man in our country before.

Lesson for Georgia In Kentucky Sheep

LEXINGTON, Ky.—If such a thing were possible, it would be a fine thing for our Georgia Sheep Breeders Association to meet here in Lexington at the Experiment Station for its annual get-together. Although sheep are becoming fewer in numbers each year, there are many small herds of registered and grade sheep of the Hampshire and Southdown breeds. These are our favorites in Georgia.

The Experiment station herd is a good one. The herdsman is a jim-dandy, likewise, a hard working, wiry little Englishman named Barbour, who knows his sheep. Last year at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, his pen of 3 lambs won the first prize. No further recommendation is needed.

OF COURSE, Kentucky is different in climate from Georgia and the grasses and clovers are different, but the sheep development of Georgia and Kentucky run fairly parrallel and one can learn a great deal about sheep handling in Kentucky which will help him in Georgia. The pattern is about the same—sheep breeders of both states being interested primarily in the production of Spring lambs, regarding wool as of secondary importance.

They breed for early lambs, making every effort to bring off the lambs by Xmas and thus onto the market before Summer. Wool production is increased by good breeding and is expected to produce enough revenue to take care of the entire cost of the ewe through the year.

The buildings are relatively simple, though in Georgia we provide shelter and shelter only, while in Kentucky they house them fairly comfortably. Lambs are dropped in the open barn and the ewes are not confined until the lambing is completely over. Then they are penned for a few days.

THE FEED is quite different, though we have nothing to apologize for in Georgia. Our herds are pastured on Bermuda, lespedezas, small grains and clovers, kudzu, honeysuckle, etc., while in Kentucky the sheep are moved from bluegrass to small grains to orchard grass to bluegrass.

There are less parasites in Kentucky than in Georgia but in both places the problem can be licked by dips, DDT, Phenothiazine and Trol. Our markets are as good as they have here.

One factor stands out here. In Kentucky they watch over them more carefully. They cull their flocks. The result is that their breeding stock is superior to ours, on the average. Down home we would think that a good ram would be worth $50 to $75. Here I did not find one priced at less than $150 and the fairly good ones at $300 to $350.

But this is not to say that we are very far behind, not at all. We"ll get there yet!

The Skipper Makes Training Fun

ABOARD THE U. S. S. PERRY IN THE ATLANTIC—Besides being in other respects something of a paradox to the popular conception of a career naval officer, the skipper of this ship acts on the realization that most of the reservists aboard for training are using their vacation time from civilian jobs. And he believes they should get an enjoyable cruise as well as instruction which will enable them, in an emergency, to form nucleus of personnel for a war-strength fleet.

This training business is something new to Cmdr. Clyde J. Van Arsdall, Jr., who hails from Indianola, Miss. But, like anything else he undertakes he has entered into it with gusto. In fact, the 34-year-old Annapolis graduate who has spent 12 out of the last 13 years at sea, has the reserve officers aboard in full agreement with the ship's regular crew who swear the Mississippian is "the best damned destroyer skipper in the Navy."

AT PRESENT the crew is grumbling no little because "the cap'n," as he is called, is to be transferred from this destroyer next month. And if the crew members carry out their threat at least half of them will be requesting transfers at the same time.

As one seaman put it, "You can talk to him like a man. If you've got any troubles, just tell the cap'n. He'll help you out."

Cmdr. Van Arsdall seems utterly oblivious of his popularity with his crew. He simply treats them as individuals and makes due allowance for the shortcomings of each, according to his capabilities. The day the touseled-headed little seaman brought an obviously garbled message from the bridge the captain smiled and asked if the lad were certain the message was correct. It was, the seaman asserted. The captain thanked him and dismissed him. Then he reached for a telephone and called the bridge for the correct message.

"That kid," the captain explained when he was done, "has only a sixth-grade education. He doesn't even understand what the words mean."

Cmdr. Van Arsdall only recently returned from an eight-month goodwill cruise to the important ports of Europe. Before that he was lately returned from the Pacific where he spent nearly three years in combat. Among other decorations, he wears the Navy Cross.

ALTHOUGH AWARE that a two-week cruise every year cannot qualify a reservist as a top-flight seaman, the skipper strongly believes the familiarity with operations and tactics developed on training cruises would save the Navy many weeks, perhaps months, in case of an emergency. And there is nothing like practical experience to lend that acquaintance.

The nine reserve officers on board alternate as officers of the deck. And the 132 enlisted reservists, ranging from firemen to gunners, are getting daily training in their respective fields.

On the second day at sea the men aboard were having a huge time as star shells were fired from the five-inch guns for the crews of the 40 mm. guns to use as targets. Needless to say, there were no direct hits, but had the star shells been as large as an enemy plane it would have been quite a different story.

ADEPTNESS with small arms could hardly be called a long suit with the Navy but knowing how to shoot is likely to come in handy to any serviceman. Besides, practically everybody aboard can participate in small arms practice, while only the special crews can shoot the heavy guns. Being the sort of skipper he is, that probably is the reason the captain ordered .45s and Tommy guns brought topside.

Two five-inch shell cans, measuring about three feet in length and some six inches in diameter, were tossed over the side to furnish a baffling target while the ship plied around the spot. Even though the targets were only 50 feet away at times, there were only two positive hits recorded. And if any marksman thinks it easy, let him try it from the deck of a rolling ship on a target bobbing with every motion of the sea.

It is with such drills as these that Cmdr. Van Arsdall believes the Navy can enable its reservists to keep a hand in and at the same time enjoy the training cruises. Of course, there are liberties to make at Bermuda which will be no little compensation to the reservists, but the success of the cruise so far is largely due to the skipper's ability to make the training interesting—and at times entertaining.

GALLUP POLL

Who Controls House, Senate?

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—A substantial segment of the total voting population can't say right now which political party has the most members in either branch of Congress.

This finding emerges from a nation-wide poll in which Institute field reporters asked:

1. "Do you happen to know which party — The Democratic or Republican—has the most members in the U. S. House of Representatives?"

The resurts:

Democrats Do	10%
Republicans Do	64
Don't Know	26

2. "And do you happen to know which political party has the most members in the Senate?"

The results:

Democrats Do	9%
Republicans Do	58
Don't Know	33

One thing should be kept in mind however in considering the above tables: they represent proportions of the total eligible voting populations, not of the number of persons who actually cast votes. There is always a substantial group who do not go to the polls. In 1940, for example, the proportion of eligible voters who did not actually vote amounted to 37 percent.

Men are far better informed on the questions than women.

Better than eight out of 10 among college people know the answer on both questions. More than half among those with grammar school education or less can't say who controls the Senate.

WHO CONTROLS HOUSE?

	Demos. Control	Repubs. Control	Dont Know

THOMAS L. STOKES

Truman Follows His Erratic Course

WASHINGTON—President Truman's signature of the bill to outlaw portal pay suits, which was contrary to most forecasts, illuminates some phases of the current political picture.

It was revealing as to President Truman's own technique as a political leader, as to a species of strategy in Congress, and as to labor itself.

The portal-to-portal act, which admittedly opens the way for a minority of chiseling employers to take advantage of workers, likewise represents the first major victory in chiseling at the New Deal body of reforms left by President Roosevelt. For, as Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach pointed out in his futile arguments for a veto, it weakens the wage-hour act, a basic New Deal reform won only after a hard fight.

It is typical of the flank attack strategy that has been adopted in Congress by the coalition of conservative Republicans and Democrats who are in control.

THE GREAT FLOOD of portal pay suits was recognized as an evil for which unwise labor leadership was to blame. But conservative interests in and out of Congress seized the opportunity to go much further than to correct the abuse and attacked basic labor statutes that are a protection principally to unorganized workers.

In accepting the bill, President Truman revealed himself again in the more conservative and amendable role of recent months, and as following the more conservative advisers with whom he has surrounded himself instead of his Secretary of Labor, who has New Deal inclinations. Again, too, Mr. Truman seemed to be following the voting returns, as in surrendering on OPA and housing controls nearer to election time.

It is being surmised here that there is a political play involved, another veering in the now right, now left course upon which both Republicans and New Deal Democrats have remarked caustically. The President, it is being said, makes this gesture to the conservatives in preparation for a more generous bow to the other side by veto later of the labor regulatory bill in which organized labor has a more fundamental interest.

IN A MILDER way, he took the same course in this case as on OPA and housing. He gave good reasons for acting otherwise, then yielded. In this case he pointed out the ambiguities which he said the courts would have to clear up, though he did not recognize them as being as potentially injurious as other critics of the act. Meanwhile, the measure creates a confusing administrative situation that must be met by the Labor Department before the courts can do any interpreting.

He chose the in-between, compromising method on the portal pay bill rather than the direct and forthright method of meeting the issue squarely on its merits by a veto and a demand that Congress remove the ambiguities that he cited. The direct approach would have aroused more enthusiasm for him as a political leader among the millions of workers involved.

From this experience, labor possibly may learn a lesson or two. The rank and file can see that some of their leaders overplayed their hand with the inexcusable barrage of suits that aroused the public, as well as business. And there was clearly demonstrated the need of expanding their organization drives, so that workers, particularly in the South, can protect themselves in unions.

LORETTA WITH SWEDISH ACCENT

'The Farmer's Daughter' Funny, Tuneful, Artistic

By PAUL JONES

The movie of the week is "The Farmer's Daughter," a delectable comedy-romance about a Swedish Cinderella who is projected into a tumultuous political scrap. It opens today at the Fox Theater.

"Farmer's Daughter" is a rare gem of entertainment. It expresses good humor with good taste. It has a sparkling script and a riot of funny situations, which are most cleverly interpreted by a top-drawer cast. Its musical score reflects the utmost artistry of a top Hollywood composer. RKO spared no expense in giving this play top treatment. The settings are unusually good. Throughout the entire play there is a warmth and a gaiety.

Joseph Cotten

The leading roles are handled by polished veterans—Loretta Young, in the title part; Joseph Cotten, a highly-born young statesman, and Ethel Barrymore, his gracious, frequently sardonic mother. A better cast could not have been chosen. Miss Young is gay and pretty and her Swedish accent sounds real. She and Cotten duet affectively in the love scenes, also. One word—terrific—always seems to describe best the work of the Barrymores, especially Ethel.

'BEDELIA' LAUDED

The author of "Laura" has contributed another of those smart, suspense-laden whodunits to the screen. The author is Vera Caspary and the new movie is "Bedelia," a British production which opened Thursday at the Paramount.

The yarn is about a money-mad woman who disposes of three husbands before the law discovers she has collected an insurance policy following each death.

The play has a smart script, excellent production, good music and a grand cast.

Margaret Lockwood, the lovely British actress, turns the trick as the murderess. She completely dominates every scene. Her portrait of the maidenly killer is a gem. She is as wicked as she was in "Wicker Lady," but her manner is more subtle. Ian Hunter impersonates one of her ill-fated mates with perfection.

"HOUSE" DISAPPOINTING

"The Red House," a phony psychological story about a haunted house, a juvenile delinquent and a moody farmer who has hallucinations about a ramshackle barn, opened Thursday at Loew's.

This film is not in keeping with the type entertainment Loew's offers from week to week. It is as full of holes as a piece of old cheese; the dialogue is juvenile and most of the situations read like a high school drama. The theme of the play sounds like a Bronte novel, but it falls short because of poor writing, producing and acting.

Edward G. Robinson, who plays the part of the mad farmer, is the standout performer, and the only member of the cast who really does a creditable job. Lon McAllister, Judith Anderson and Allene Roberts are other principal players.

Crop Delay Laid To Early Rains

Rainfall 50 percent higher than normal during March and April have delayed crops in Georgia for two weeks, according to the latest Government reports.

The Department of Agriculture has as yet made no estimate for the Georgia acreage planted in cotton, but the estimate for the corn acreage in this State is 3,346,000. This is slightly higher than last year but is far below the 10-year average. Acreages in hay and peanuts are lower than last year.

Similar conditions prevail throughout the Southern States. In some places, rainfall delayed planting crops for as much as six weeks. Continued cool weather retards the development of those crops already planted.

Sons, Daughters of Pilgrims Elect Judge Humphries

Judge John G. Humphries, of Atlanta, was elected Recording Secretary of the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims at the annual convention of the group held Thursday in Washington, D. C., according to an Associated Press report. The organization named Mrs. John G. Chappell, of Silver Springs, Md., as Governor General.

House 'Sergeant' Guilty In $143,863 Fraud Case

WASHINGTON, May 15—(UP)—A Federal Court Jury Thursday found Kenneth Romney, former House sergeant-at-arms, guilty of fraudulently concealing a $143,863 shortage in House bank funds that stretched over two decades.

The Jury was out only an hour and 50 minutes and convicted him on all three counts of the indictment.

The 65-year-old Montana Democrat faces a maximum penalty of 30 years in prison and a $30,000 fine. His attorney, William H. Collins, announced he would appeal and Judge Alexander Holtzoff delayed passing sentence until Friday.

Romney, who was released in $2,500 bail, stared pale and nervous at the seven-man, five-woman jury as his lawyer polled each member and each intoned the word guilty. In the jammed courtroom were Mrs. Romney and son, Kenneth, Jr., but neither showed any emotion.

Government witnesses testified that he concealed the shortage by carrying as cash-on-hand a number of worthless checks, several of them signed by former Rep. John H. Smithwick, Democrat, Fla., his partner in ill-chosen Florida real estate deals.

The Government also presented testimony that Romney gave $25,000 in funds from the bank, which handles House members' money, to support Smithwick's unsuccessful campaign for re-election in 1928. FBI Agent Edward A. Armbruster testified that part of the money went into Romney's real estate ventures with Smithwick.

Romney became sergeant-at-arms in 1931 after his party won control of Congress, but before that he had served as cashier of the bank for 13 years. He was succeeded as sergeant-at-arms by Republican William Russell after the GOP took over Congress last January.

The shortage was discovered in an audit requested by Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Republican, Mass., after Russell complained of the state of the accounts. The audit was made by Compt. Gen. Lindsay C. Warren.

While the audit was underway, and for some time thereafter, the bank was closed, causing considerable embarrassment for congressmen whose money was impounded.

Democratic leaders made no attempt to absolve the accused.

Romney, who offered no defense, was not charged with embezzling or misusing the funds, but merely with fraudulently concealing that they were missing. The statute of limitations ruled out an embezzlement charge.

Albert Fangmeyer, a former House bank cashier, testified that Romney always thought he could make good the funds. Fangmeyer said he asked Romney to go to Florida and try and get some money out of Smithwick. Romney bought a plane ticket but never used it.

WARNS ON RETURN OF VET CHECKS

Veterans who receive subsistence checks to which they are not entitled must return them to the Government, Vaux Owen, Georgia Regional VA Manager, Thursday reminded thousands of GI students preparing to leave school for a Summer holiday.

Owen said existing laws provide penalties for veterans who fraudulently retain overpayments. Ex-GIs in institutional or on-the-job training are entitled to substance only while actually in school or training, Owen emphasized. Interruption of schooling or training automatically terminates the legal right of the veteran to receive subsistence, and veterans should notify the VA of such change.

King Tells Britons Country Still Young

LONDON, May 15 — (UP) — King George VI told thousands of cheering Britons Thursday that "this old country" is still young and vigorous and that his South African travels had proved to him that the bonds of partnership throughout the Empire were stronger than ever.

The King, Queen Elizabeth and the royal family returned from a three-months' tour of South Africa Sunday. Thursday they went to Guildhall to receive the traditional welcome home from the Lord Mayor of London.

The King, his voice hoarse from an attack of laryngitis, said he found in South Africa "a firm faith" in Britain's ability to "weather present storms and to continue to play a noble part in shaping the future of the world."

More Sugar Available for Summer Canning

Georbia housewives who can or preserve fruits, or put up fruit juices, this Summer for legitimate sale may obtain extra sugar for the purpose, E. Burns Brooks, Branch Office Director of the U. S. Department of Commerce's Sugar Rationing Administration, said Thursday.

The same rule, he said, will apply to institutional users who prepare fruits or juices for sale.

Both canners and institutional users who plan to sell their products must file formal applications and keep records of production on sugar used, and the dates when products are sold.

Brooks said no change has been made in the amount of sugar available for home consumption and use. The recently-increased individual ration—boosted from five to 10 pounds—must be stretched to include canning for home use, he said.

Softer Union Bill Forecast In Attempt To Override Veto

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—Striving for a labor disputes bill Congress would pass over a presidential veto, Rep. Hartley, Republican, New Jersey, Thursday predicted the House will yield to the Senate and scrap two major union curbing provisions of the House measure.

Hartley is Chairman of the House Labor Committee and head of the House conferees working out a compromise on labor legislation with a Senate delegation. He told reporters he believes the conference group will scrap sections of the House bill which would:

1. Outlaw industry-wide collective bargaining in nearly every case.

2. Authorize private employers to seek injunctions against jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts.

The Senate rejected amendments which would have added these provisions to its bill, which has fewer curbs on unions and strikes than the House measure.

Hartley told reporters after the first meeting of the Senate-House conference committee Thursday that there is "no question" that the House would override a veto, if President Truman rejects the bill he gets.

"But our big problem is to bring out a bill which not only will pass in the Senate, but which the Senate would pass over a veto," he added.

800 Kroger Workers Pose Strike Threat

Gunning for Georgia's anti-closed shop law, 800 members of the Meatcutters' Local 442 and Retail Clerks' Local 1063 have agreed here to strike against the Kroger Company, if necessary, to bring the newly-passed legislation to a court test.

At a joint meeting, the Meatcutters' and Clerks' unions, both AFL, authorized their executive boards to take whatever action is needed to obtain some form of union security in their contracts with 34 Georgia grocery stores in the Kroger chain, according to I. P. Reagan, Business Agent for the Meatcutters.

Reagan announced Thursday that Kroger had agreed tentatively to grant the unions $5 to $10 weekly wage increases plus other working condition improvements but had balked on renewing the closed shop clause in the contract, which expired here April 12.

"We're hoping the Atlanta office will get word from its headquarters in Cincinnati to give us some form of closed shop security," Reagan said.

Should the Company grant such a security clause, union sources hope the Company and the unions would bring the matter into the courts for a showdown on the constitutionality of the Georgia law.

The Clerks and Meatcutters plan is aimed at the same objective announced by George L. Googe, Southern AFL Director, who announced shortly after Acting Gov. Thompson signed the laws in late March.

Reagan reported, however, that Googe had left the tactics of testing the Georgia law through court action up to the Georgia Federation of Trades since it was a Georgia law.

Whether the Georgia Federation will back up the Meatcutters' and Clerks' efforts is in doubt. Charles B. Gromling, Federation President, withheld comment Thursday pending action by the Federation's Board of Directors in Savannah this coming week.

Meanwhile, F. A. Williams, Atlanta Branch Manager of the Kroger chain, affirmed that negotiations were under way but did not comment on the unions' strike threat.

"We have never had any trouble with our contracts, and we don't expect any this time," Williams said. Any wage increase agreed upon would be retroactive to the date negotiations opened, he added.

Grady Hospital Asks Sprinkler System Bids

Bids for sprinkler systems for four Grady Hospital buildings have been requested in an effort to minimize fire hazards, Frank Wilson, Grady Superintendent, said Thursday.

Cost estimates have been asked for sprinklers for two of the hospital buildings and the two old nurses' home. Other structures at Grady are regarded safe enough to meet existing fire ordinances without installing sprinklers.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

You Ask the Question; I'll Supply the Answer

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "My problem is about a fellow who is calling me at all hours of the night . . . every night in the week. He's very nice, good-looking and he wants me to go steady with him. I'm going with another boy at the moment . . . but this first boy has been watching and waiting for me practically every night. Will you tell me what to say to him without hurting his feelings . . . so he'll cut it out?"

You can put the lid on this dropping in to see you late every night, by having someone else in your family go to the door. You don't have to be "at home" to him every time he stops by. You can be "out" or, "in bed" or "busy" . . . and be sure you stay that way. Tell him gently the next time you see him that you're sorry you missed his visit. Add that you'd be glad to dust off the welcome mat if you only knew when to expect him. Make him make his dates definite and early.

BY LONG DISTANCE

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "I've been going away to school for the past four years . . . but during vacations I get around fast. Last Christmas I met a girl and liked her right off the bat. I saw her as often as I could while I was home. We've been writing since, and I had her up to my class prom. I only see her about twice a month, but I have a lot of fun with her. I want her to go steady with me, but I can't think of a way to ask her that wouldn't put her in an unusual position!"

If you asked her to go steady at all . . . you'd be putting her in an unusual position, I think. You're away at school . . . you can only see her a couple of times a month. What's she supposed to do with all her free dating time? If you're going to reserve it . . . you ought to be in a position to use it. You can make your dates with her as often as you can . . . and make them the highlights of her life. You can be so attractive and interesting that she'll like you best of all the boys she knows. That's exactly what you really want . . . and you can do that without tying her up hand and foot!

ALL'S FAIR

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: I've been liking this boy on and off for the past year. He liked my girlfriend so I kept my feelings to myself until several people told me he liked me. He has never asked me for a date . . . but we're together often at parties and with the crowd, and he always walks me home from games. The problem is that my girl friend has informed me that she likes him again. Should I stop liking him because she does? Other boys have asked me for dates but I've turned them down because I wouldn't want to make the boy I like mad. Should I go?"

It isn't a question of first come, first served. If your girl friend still likes the boy you like . . . that's her business. You needn't stop liking him because she does too. Make hay when you're with him . . . try to wangle some dates out of him. You've as much right to make a play for this boy as any girl in town. But go out with boys who ask you for dates . . . at least until you have the boy you like best in your pocket!

Marist Militia Men Promenade

By ANN WOOD

The officers' escorts, in billowing skirts and wide hats, smiled their prettiest. The parade was on.

The annual military exercises and promenade, when Marist College cadets show the world their military excellence, was held Thursday afternoon on the school quadrangle.

Squads vied for the honor of "best drilled." Platoons competed. Companies competed. The General made the awards. Retreat sounded.

Then came the tradition which Marist loves—the promenade. Led by Lt. Col. Arnold and his sponsor, Patricia Patton, officers and their escorts paraded to slow waltzes in the Grand March.

The exercises were followed by a dinner and a dance.

Price winners were Cadet Maj. George Maloof, most outstanding cadet of the year; Cadet Capt. Edgar Chambers, company competitive drill; Cadet Lt. William Warner, platoon competitive drill; Cadet Wayne Pearson, squad competitive drill; Patrick Greene, bandsman having made the most progress during the year; Cadet Tommy Corley, best drilled cadet in the Corps, and Cadet Anthony Rives, best drilled cadet in the seventh and eighth grades.

Year-Long Rest

Upon conclusion of his role in Paramount's "Welcome Stranger," in which he co-stars with Bing Crosby and Joan Caulfield, Barry Fitzgerald started a year-long vacation, inaugurating his well-earned rest with a trip to Ireland.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

Hedy To Be Seen Next In 'Too Late for Tears'

HOLLYWOOD, May 15—(INS) Even though Hedy Lamar has become a recluse in her private life, Hunt Stromberg continues to buy the most exotic stories he can get his hands on for her.

He's just bought Jay Dratler's script of "Too Late for Tears" from Hilton Sperling, who had it all sewed up for a United States production. But Hunt thought it was perfect for Hedy, so he nabbed it.

Story is about a glamorous Hollywood star.

Maybe the ladies who love it when Turhan Bey makes with the hand kisses and low bows from the waist won't like the idea but their boy friend is going rough and tough in his next.

As soon as Turhan finishes "The Adventures of Casanova" in Mexico, he returns here to make "Rainbow Ridge" based on the magazine article about the annual wild horse roundup. Yep, he'll be a cowboy.

In the days when we were children and "Black Beauty" was read to us, there was another story that ranked with it in popularity called "Beautiful Joe," the story of an ugly mongrel dog whose character formed a sharp contrast to the unkind treatment he received from human beings.

"Beautiful Joe" was written by Marshall Saunders, a 19-year-old girl who won a $10,000 contest sponsored by the newly formed humane society in 1889.

Edward Alperson, who made "Black Beauty" into a movie, will film the dog story for Twentieth Century-Fox release.

Talked with Mybelle Webb, Clifton Webb's dynamic ma, over the telephone, and she said they had moved into the Baroness Paulenc's gorgeous home. She said they have put their Connecticut place up for sale. They had Grace Moore's apartment in New York.

Fred MacMurray and I had a discussion today as to whether he should wear a derby hat, spats and gloves in the press agent role in "Miracle of the Bells," which he starts in July.

"Now you know," he said, "you've never seen a press agent dressed like that."

"Oh, yes I have," I told him.

"Couldn't I just dress flashy?" asked Fred.

How do you feel about it, readers?

Actor Richard Carlson, who was in the Navy during the war, has just sold "The Scull Beneath the Skin" to John C. Wilson, who has produced most of Noel Coward's plays in this country. Wilson thinks so well of Dick's play he's trying to get Tallulah Bankhead or Ina Claire for the lead when it's produced on Broadway this Fall.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Charlie Chaplin, Jr., buying dinner for Jean Gordon, a comely model, at the Beverly Tropics.

Errol Flynn now has a brother-in-law named Warner. No relation to his boss. His sister, Rosemarie, married Maj. Charles Warner in Washington a few days ago.

The Tom Browns say they expect twins next month and were celebrating the happy news at the Seacombers.

Mrs. Jack Warner leaves in July to spend the Summer in Europe. Jack will join her there in August. Their daughter, Barbara, who has been in school in Switzerland, remains for another year.

Wonder if it's true that Leroy Prinz won $17,000 at the Derby and Preakness?

Gene Tierney has accepted Richard Aldridge's offer to do Summer stock at Cape Cod.

Fibber McGee and Molly (Jim and Mollie Jordan) have also had an offer from Moss Hart for three weeks in Maine, and they are considering it.

June Havoc and Bill Speers, radio producer, are really getting around together.

John Loder bowed out of the stage play "Laura" so he could come home. Otto Kruger replaces him.

Jane Wyatt gets Florence Eldridge's role in "Skin of Your Teeth" in the local stage play.

Four-year-old Judy Donlevy, who had her picture taken at the Stork Club with her daddy, gets back next week accompanied by a bodyguard and a nurse.

Desserts Easier With Beginning Of Fruit Season

By SALLY SAVER

It's time to spring a few surprises for Spring. Menus, as well as wardrobes, need new additions and a general overhauling to keep in step with the season.

Pies are always a popular dessert, and here at the beginning of a new fruit season, are some grand new recipes for pies. Does your taste run to a juicy deep dish rhubarb pie of the old school or a banana pie with gingersnap crust? Or to a fluffy pineapple chiffon pie definitely in this year's style? To a two crust strawberry pie, fragrant and colorful, or to a "cream-crumb surprise" that is as much a surprise in flavor as in appearance? Perhaps you'll like to try all these pies and watch a revival of family interest in your culinary skill.

Let's try the Deep-Dish Rhubarb Pie first, out of deference to the years it has been making popular appearances. Cut young, tender pink rhubarb in inch slices (or use frozen rhubarb) but do not peel it. Butter a deep round baking dish, one that is really deep, and fill it to the very top with the rhubarb mixed with sugar—1 cupful to 4 cups fruit. Make a short pie crust from your favorite recipe or the one given below and roll it to a scant ⅛-inch thickness, cut a narrow strip about one-half inch wide and fit it around the inside of the baking dish, close to the top. Cover the dish with the rest of the pastry and pinch the edges firmly to the top of the strip of pastry. Cut several slits in the top of the pastry and bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for 45 to 60 minutes. When done, remove from the oven, cool slightly, sprinkle powdered sugar over the top and serve warm in the dish in which is was baked.

Crust:
2 cups crushed gingersnaps
2-3 cup melted butter or margarine.
Filling:
2 tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatin.
1-2 cup cold water.
3 eggs, separated.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 1-2 cups mashed ripe banana.
1-3 cup sugar.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
1-2 cup orange juice.
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.
1 teaspoon grated orange rind.
Sliced bananas.

Crush enough gingersnaps to make 2 cups (about 25); blend with the melted butter and press firmly into 9-inch pie plate. Chill until firm. Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add slowly to egg yolks beaten light with the banana, half the sugar and 2 tablespoons of lemon juice. Add orange juice, orange and lemon rind. Cool until syrupy. Beat egg white light with salt. When stiff, add rest of sugar and beat until points are formed. Fold into thickened egg yolk mixture and heap into crust. Chill until firm. Dip sliced bananas in rest of lemon juice and arrange on top of pie. Yield: 6 servings.

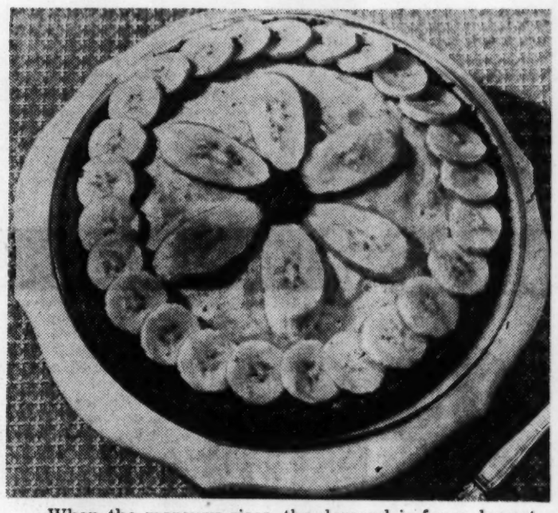
And here is a grand recipe for Pineapple Chiffon Pie. Dissolve a package of orange flavored gelatine in one cup hot crushed canned pineapple, add one tablespoon lemon juice and the well-beaten yolks of three eggs mixed with three tablespoons sugar. Let the mixture cool until it begins to thicken, then beat with an egg beater until fluffy. Whip in the stiffly beaten egg whites of three eggs and continue beating until the filling is very thick. Pour into a baked pie shell, chill and cover with whipped cream slightly sweetened. Garnish with small cubes of canned pineapple and tiny bits of scarlet maraschino cherry.

Cream-Crumb Surprise is really more a pudding than a pie. Mix one and one-half cups fine dry stale bread crumbs with four tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and four tablespoons melted butter and blend them well. Butter a deep pie plate and sprinkle one-third of the crumb mixture in the bottom of the plate, making a smooth layer. Cover the crumbs with one cup thick strained apple or rhubarb sauce, add another layer of the bread crumbs, a second cup of the fruit sauce and then a final layer of crumbs. Bake in a slow oven—325 degrees—for 25 minutes or until the crumbs are a golden brown. Chill thoroughly. Work one package of cream cheese with two tablespoons thick cream and spread in a thick layer over the top of the pie, just before serving. The apple or rhubarb sauce must be very thick or the pie will be too juicy.

Pastry for pie crust is not difficult to make. Sift one and one-half cups flour (for a small two-crust pie or a large baked pie shell) with one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon baking powder. Work in two-thirds cup lard and butter in equal proportions, or one-half cup of any of the preferred vegetable shortenings. Rub the fat into the flour with a stiff dough—about one-third cupful. Add the water a little at a time and work it gradually. Too much water will make a tough crust. Roll the dough quickly and lightly on a separately floured board.

If one does not choose to make her own pie crust, the frozen doughs are very satisfactory. Frozen pie crusts and boxed pie mixtures are in all grocery stores now.

Use one of the above pastries for deep dish and the chiffon pies mentioned here and for a Two-crust Strawberry Pie. Line a pie plate with the pastry rolled a scant eighth inch thick. Wash and drain one quart strawberries. Mix one cup sugar with three tablespoons flour and then mix this with the berries. Fill the lined pie plate with the berries, cover with pastry and pinch the edges firmly together. Cut two or three slits in the top crust and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees and continue baking for 25 minutes longer or until the pie is golden brown and the berries cooked through.



When the mercury rises, the demand is for a dessert light and cool, not only to eat but to prepare. This banana pie with gingersnap crust never sees the inside of an oven, and uses very little of that precious sugar supply.

GRAHAM MUFFINS
½ cup flour
¾ teaspoon soda
1/3 cup molasses
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups graham flour
1/3 cup walnuts, chopped
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter, melted
¾ cup raisins, chopped

Sift bread flour with soda. Mix with molasses and then stir in cinnamon and graham flour. Combine egg, milk and lemon juice and stir quickly into flour mixture. Add melted butter; then fold in raisins and walnuts. Fill greased muffin tins 2/3 full of mixture and bake in moderate oven (350 F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Makes one dozen muffins.

SAVORY POT ROAST
5 pounds beef, blade chuck, rump or other
2 tablespoons flour
1 1-2 teaspoons salt
1-2 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons melted fat
1 onion
3 cloves
Boiling water or stock

Wipe meat with a damp cloth, and dredge with the flour in which salt and pepper has been mixed. Melt fat and heat in a heavy kettle or saucepan. Brown meat gently on all sides in the fat. Add small amount of boiling water and the onion in which the cloves have been stuck. Cover kettle closely, reduce heat so that water simmers and cook slowly until meat is tender, four to five hours. If vegetables are wanted add carrots, turnips, potatoes, cauliflower or others desired, 30 to 40 minutes before meat is ready to serve, so that vegetables will not be overcooked. When meat and vegetables are removed to a hot serving platter, thicken gravy to serve with meat.

CHICKEN CUTLETS
2 cups minced cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped pimentos
1 small can mushrooms, chopped
¼ teaspoon onion juice
1½ cups bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
Fat for frying

Combine all ingredients except fat for frying, and form into patties or cutlets. Dust with flour and pan-fry in hot fat until golden brown on both sides. Arrange on hot platter and garnish with parsley. Serve with mushroom sauce made of canned cream of mushroom soup, if desired.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Merryman will entertain at a wedding reception at their home on Frighton Road. Miss Mary Lewis will keep the bride's book, and assisting in entertaining will be Mesdames Frank Reynolds, Chester Martin, Hilda Robey, Jack Jamieson and Wayne Penuel.

Among the parties planned for the bridal couple is the stag affair to be given on Friday evening for Mr. Miller by a group of his friends, and the miscellaneous shower and dinner to be given at the same time for the bride-elect. On Saturday Mrs. Jack Jamieson will give a luncheon at her Monroe Drive residence, and later Miss Mary Lewis will entertain at tea at Rich's.

The members of Mrs. Merryman's sewing club, who include Mesdames Hilda Robey, W. J. Gower, E. L. Gunn, F. H. Hill and William Carlton, will compliment the bride-elect at a tea on May 22, and that evening Mrs. W. E. Hooser, of Nashville, Tenn., will entertain at a rehearsal party. Mrs. Lewis Emory honored Miss Merryman at a tea and linen shower recently at her home on Woodward Way.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Maryly Van Leer Corners Honors at Druid Hills High

With the highest number of A's in the history of the school to her credit, Maryly Van Leer, gifted and dynamic young daughter of Col. and Mrs. Blake Van Leer, will graduate from Druid Hills High School next Friday as honor student and valedictorian. A's are nothing unusual to Maryly, however, for she also piled up an all-A record at Ravenscroft School in Raleigh and at Gordon High School in Washington, D. C. And, as if that were not enough, at the latter institution she passed the highest mental perception test ever passed in the City of Washington.

MARYLY VAN LEER

Other honors coming to Maryly at Druid Hills High include her selection as the "most intellectual," the "most original," and the "most likely to succeed" in the school's superlative contest. She was also runner-up to several of the other superlatives.

But Maryly's activities are not limited to scholarship at Druid Hills. She goes in wholeheartedly for swimming and intramural activities, and has won her letter in each for the past three years. She served as treasurer of the Atlanta Swimming Association, as business manager of the Saga, the school annual, and as girls' director of athletics. In addition, there are her honor society duties as a member of Tri-Hi-Y, and the fact that she has a finger in every pie, so to speak, at the school. For instance, at the recent junior-senior dance, she conceived the idea and directed the making of the cherry blossoms and wisteria for the Oriental theme. And after the dance, she was hostess to the graduates at her home on Fourth Street.

Maryly's entire attention is not centered on school and her activities there, however, for she loves a good time and is in great demand for dances, parties, etc., dividing her time between Sewanee, the Naval Academy, West Point and, of course, Georgia Tech. She plans to dash up to Sewanee this weekend for two dances, and then back for her baccalaureate sermon at Glenn Memorial Church on Sunday, thereby missing the Sewanee graduation.

For her graduation, Maryly will wear the lovely ruffled white net frock that she wore as maid of honor when her brother, Ens. Blake Wayne Van Leer, was married in February. She will even carry a bouquet of Better Times roses, duplicating the red roses that she carried in the wedding. She will also carry an exquisite point lace handkerchief made by her mother when she graduated from high school as an honor graduate. But she says that she will definitely NOT use the valedictorian address her father used when he graduated from high school in Texas.

Maryly's graduation gift is a tiny Elgin wrist watch and a trip to visit her brother and his bride at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. En route she will attend the June week festivities at Annapolis, and later will go to West Point for the graduation gaieties at the U. S. Military Academy.

Next Fall this fabulous young person will enter Duke University, where she has planned to room with her close friend, Ann Arendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Banks Arendell, of Raleigh. Maryly has planned to study engineering, and she thinks now it will be electrical engineering. Her mother, who holds a degree in architecture, thinks, however, that she should take an architectural course, while her teachers think that a top-notch math or science teacher will be lost to posterity if she chooses any other line.

At any rate, the world is destined to hear from Maryly Van Leer, for such talents are not to be denied!

WHITE ELEPHANT LUNCHEON

Luncheon served in odd pieces of china and tin plates on a table covered in hay, and water served from a cedar bucket with a dipper is in store for the group of guests who will assemble for the White Elephant luncheon to be given today by Mrs. W. F. Randolph at her home on Mabry Road.

Honor guests will be Mrs. L. U. West and Mrs. Clarence Mobley, Jr., who will be flying to Atlanta this morning from Augusta to spend three days with Mrs. Randolph, and Mrs. J. R. Ulery, of Cleveland, Ohio, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. B. Thompson.

Mrs. Randolph, who is noted for her original ideas, has asked each guest to bring a gift to be auctioned at the "sale" which will follow the luncheon. The hostess has provided small baskets for each guest which will be filled with pennies, each cent to equal five dollars for the auction sale. The place cards will be in the form of miniature pieces of furniture, with the names written on the sales tags. The center of the hay-covered table will be a sawdust ring adorned with white toy elephants loaded with miniature furniture. A small doll dressed as the auctioneer will adorn one end of the table, awaiting the arrival of the elephants.

Just before the guests adjourn to the garden for the "sale," dessert will be served in duck pans to be passed by the butler on washboard trays.

Better Beer Held, Cheap Brew Premium-Priced is Charge

Retailers are holding premium beer under the counter and palming off cheap beer to the customers at premium prices, an Atlanta distributor said Thursday in a complaint to State officials.

The distributor, Bob Lee, President of Southern Distributing Company, was informed that the State Revenue Department has no authority to control prices of beer. He also said that the Brewers' Industry Foundation has no authority over prices. So Lee decided to take his complaint to the public, informing consumers over the State that they are being "gypped."

"Many retailers are selling 20 cent beer at 25 cents a bottle," Lee complained. "When a customer asks for a premium type of beer, he is told the retailer has none and a cheap substitute is handed him at the same price of the premium beer. There is plenty of premium beer available, but some retailers are faking a shortage in order to make 100 percent profit."

Lee said the retailers are killing the beer market through this scheme. Many consumers are not accepting the cheaper substitutes. He cited figures to show a decrease in beer sales in Georgia during the first three months of 1947. Sales dropped 5,566 barrels in January, 10,291 in February, and 7,812 in March.

Oxen vs. Automobile

There's one man in Carroll County who not only doesn't believe the auto will replace the horse, he doubts if it will take the place of oxen. To prove this, he says he has refused offers of more than $200 for his team which four years ago cost him only $2.50. R. L. Huggins, of the Whitesburg section of Carroll County, backs up his belief by declaring he can't remember how many times his team has pulled cars out of ditches.

Let's Talk Sense About Food Prices

In all the talk about lower prices, don't forget this:

Day in and day out, no retailer does a better job of keeping prices down than your food merchant. No food merchant does a better job than A&P.

We would like you to understand two important things about A&P's price situation:

Our net profit during the past five years has averaged only about 1 cent on each dollar of sales. If we were to operate our business without any profit at all, this 1 cent would amount to a saving of less than 4 cents a day on the entire food bill of the average American family.

We sincerely believe that A&P has the lowest cost of distribution of any retail business in the world. When you spend $1.00 in an A&P store, you get 86 cents worth of food and only about 14 cents goes to meet all expenses — wages, taxes, rent, light, heat and the hundreds of other expenses incidental to the stocking and operating of a modern food store — including our very small profit.

Obviously there is little "fat" in such a price structure. Our operating costs and profits are already cut close to the bone.

Merchants generally have reduced prices on many items on which they were overstocked. In recent weeks we have reduced prices on hundreds of such items. That is common merchandising practice and has no relation to a general or permanent price reduction.

While many food prices have already been lowered we must recognize that no substantial general reduction in retail food prices is possible until the cost of food to the retailer is reduced.

As any housewife knows, A&P's business has been built on the policy of selling quality food at the lowest practical price every day.

We pledge to our customers strict adherence to that policy. We will continue to lower our prices as fast as reductions in costs to us and economies in our operations permit.

County-Set Speed Laws Ruled Illegal in Georgia

County Commissioners have no right to set speed limits, the Georgia Supreme Court ruled Thursday.

Portions of legislative acts permitting the Fulton Commissioners to set a 35-mile-per-hour speed limit were held unconstitutional in the Court's unanimous decision.

Acts permitting the Commissioners to set speed limits contrary to those prescribed by State law could lead to other acts which could permit local authorities to create a patchwork of criminal laws, including definitions of burglary and degrees of homicide, the Court ruled.

Members of the Court held that the General Assembly illegally delegated legislative duties when it authorized Fulton Commissioners to set up special speed limits in the county, outside municipalities.

Held unconstitutional were portions of local acts of 1937 and 1941 permitting the Commissioners to prescribe these speedlimits.

The case was an appeal by B. C. Long from the Criminal Court of Fulton County and Fulton Superior Court. Long was charged with operating an automobile on Campbellton Road in excess of 35 miles an hour.

In another case, the Court denied an appeal on a writ of habeas corpus for D. C. (Dock) Archer, sentenced to life imprisonement in a Fulton County court for the hammer slaying of Louise Bailey. The death occurred March 5, 1943, and Archer was sentenced April 7, 1943.

Archer sought his freedom on the grounds he did not understand that his attorney pleaded guilty for him. The Court held that this objection should have been made at the time of sentencing.

N.C. Woman Held In Slay Attempt

LUMBERTON, N. C., May 15—(INS)—A 24-year-old farmwife in love with "another man" and the Negro she hired to kill her husband are being held without bond in the Lumberton jail.

The husband, Dan Miller, was shot in the chest and is now in the hospital, where he is reported improving.

Mrs. Miller, mother of two children, allegedly armed the Negro, 24-year-old Fred Wiggins, with a .38-caliber pistol, saw to it that he was wearing gloves, and sent him into the bedroom Sunday morning, where her husband was asleep.

Wiggins fired, officers said. Although hit in the chest, Miller jumped from the bed and gave chase, collapsing.

Mrs. Miller was quoted by Robeson County Sheriff as saying she was in love with another man. She and the Negro are charged with felonious assault with intent to kill.

Ramspeck Favors Policy Of Transport Competition

Future success and improvement of all forms of U. S. transport are dependent upon a continuation of the policy of Congress to maintain competition between various forms of transport, Robert Ramspeck, former Congressman from Georgia's Fifth District and now Executive Vice President of the Air Transport Association, believes.

Ramspeck voiced that conviction before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee Tuesday. He said improvement in service and reduction in rates for transportation have been due to "constant efforts of Congress to maintain competition."

Georgia Cotton Figures Fell Off During War

Production and value of cotton showed a gradual decline in Georgia during World War II, according to figures released here Thursday by G. Parker Persons, Regional Director of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Bureau of the Census statistics show 663,168 running bales of cotton were produced in the State during the 1945-46 season, as compared with 849,232 in 1942. Value of the crops was placed at $91,107,000 in 1945 and $105,086,000 in 1943.

Production in 1943 totaled 844,326 bales, dropping to 795,879 in 1944, with a gradual but perceptible decline as the war progressed, Persons said.

Cotton ginnings in the State were correspondingly reduced. Exclusive of linters, ginnings in 1945 totaled 664,557 bales. Previous totals were: 1942, 853,348 bales; 1943, 848,522 bales; 1944, 799,367 bales.

Linters produced in 1945, 88,771 running bales, and 99,234 in 1942.

Consider Your Health

How's your health this Spring? A good food to help keep you and your family in tip-top condition is liver. Liver is so nutritious you're wise if you serve it in some form once a week. A variety of recipes for preparing it will help immensely. Here are two. Watch for others.

a Rector Recipe

Liver and Bacon

Pan-fry 10 slices CERTIFIED BACON until crisp. Drain on paper toweling and keep warm.

Meanwhile, dredge 1 lb. liver, sliced thin (¼ to ⅓ inch), in ½ cup seasoned flour (½ cup flour, 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper).

Pan-fry liver over moderate heat in about 3 tbsp. of hot bacon fat about 5 to 10 minutes, or until brown and slightly crisp on both sides, turning only once. Serve on a hot platter and top with the cooked bacon. Serves 5.

Which Shall I Buy!

Take your choice of beef, pork or calf liver . . . or liver sausage. They're all high in food value.

Whenever liver is mentioned the comparative merits of beef, pork and calf liver and liver sausage are always discussed. Calf liver is highest in vitamin A, but one serving of any liver will furnish more than a day's allowance of vitamin A. Pork liver is highest in iron, one serving furnishing two day's allowance. liver sausage (¼ lb.) furnishes a day's allowance and calf and beef liver furnish one-third and one-half of a day's allowance, respectively.

The important thing to remember is that any liver is exceptionally nutritious, being especially valuable for iron, vitamin A, and the B vitamins, riboflavin and niacin, as well as for high quality proteins.

Cater to Family's Preferences

Some of your family do not enjoy liver? Then give them Certified Braunschweiger (liver sausage) instead. Serve it cold or pan-fry in bacon drippings. It's really delicious . . . and nutritious . . . either way.

Variety Important

Try Spanish liver some time, too. It's welcomed by many who do not care for fried liver. Brown 4 medium-sized onions in 4 tbsp. bacon drippings; remove onions and save for the sauce. Dredge 1 lb. sliced liver in seasoned flour, brown on both sides in remaining fat and top with following ingredients which have been cooked together and thickened with 2 tbsp. flour: 1 green pepper, chopped, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 tsp. sugar, and the browned onions. Add ½ cup water to the skillet, cover, and simmer 30 min. Serves 5.

Nutritionally yours,

Housewife's Special

BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 16th—My idea of a wonderful way to entertain is to have Sunday breakfast by the brook. Or if there isn't a brook nearby just serve it in the garden under the trees. Have a pitcher of orange juice . . . heaps of buttered toast . . a casserole of apples and sausages baked together and a huge pot of the best coffee you can brew!

Just one look at the FRIGIDAIRE Electric Range at your Frigidaire Dealer's and you'll know that it's the "one-and-only" range for your kitchen! You'll fall in love with its looks . . . the handsome porcelain-finished cabinet, the gleaming chrome handles. And you'll know your heart showed good sense after you've checked these features that mean years of easy, clean, economical cooking!

- A Cook-Master Control that doubles as a kitchen clock and a cooking time control . . . automatically turning on and off at the right time whether you're in the kitchen or downtown shopping.
- An extra-big, Even-Heat Oven.
- Quick-heating Radiantube Units that cook foods to perfection at the turn of a switch.
- A storage drawer as wide as the range itself.
- A top that flows in one, smooth unbroken line from the top of the back panel, across the cooking surface and down over the switches.

It's the most beautiful range I've ever seen . . . check on it quickly! Made by Frigidaire Division of General Motors!

TO A MAN'S WAY OF THINKING, this PERFECTION SALAD is "tops!" It's crisp and crunchy with cabbage and celery . . . extra-fresh and delicious in flavor . . . a REAL salad, masculinely speaking!

PERFECTION SALAD (Serves 6)

1 envelope KNOX Gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 cup hot water
¼ cup mild vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup cabbage, finely shredded
1 cup celery, cut in small pieces
1 pimiento, cut in small pieces, or 2 tablespoons sweet red or green peppers

Soften gelatine in cold water. Add sugar, salt and hot water, and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and lemon juice. Cool, and when mixture begins to stiffen, add remaining ingredients. Turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. To serve, remove from mold to bed of lettuce leaves or endive, and garnish, with mayonnaise dressing.

Flavor and freshness count most with men, and when you use KNOX in desserts and salads, they're at their best! So when you shop for gelatine,—be sure the name KNOX is right on the box!

The only trouble with food "leftovers" is that they're apt to taste sort of tired-out or "hand-me-down." But give them a "reviver" of Armour's famous beef flavor-maker, VITALOX . . . and see how often warmed-up dishes become even more savory than in their "original" state! For instance, try using up yesterday's pot roast or roast beef in this Beef Pie . . . with VITALOX to add a rich meatiness of flavor.

2 tbsp. VITALOX
6 tbsp. drippings
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup flour
1½ tsp. salt
2 cups milk
2 cups cubed, leftover pot roast or roast beef
1 chopped pimiento
1 cup prepared biscuit mix prepared as directed on pkg.

Lightly brown onion and celery in drippings. Add flour and salt and blend well before adding milk. Stir in VITALOX and cook over low heat until thickened. Add cubed meat and pimiento. Place in casserole dish and place biscuits cut diamond-shaped over the top. Bake in 375 deg. F. oven for 30 min.

Strawberry Shortcake!

When the strawberries come red, ripe and wonderful on your fruit stands soon, it'll be easy to serve your family their fill of STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE! Just remember that BISQUICK is back to make it for you in double-quick time! But more important is the kind of shortcake BISQUICK makes: Crispy and flaky outside; melt-in-your-mouth tender inside. To make it with BISQUICK is as simple as this:

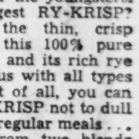
For the shortcake, just add cream to Bisquick, as directed on the package. Make one huge shortcake or individual ones. Then bake and while hot, split, spread with butter, then pile high with whole strawberries or crushed ones. And then in traditional fashion, top with heaps of plain or sweetened whipped cream.

Tricks to save minutes come in mighty handy when it's a question of putting housework behind you . . . so you can enjoy "time out for fun." And OLD DUTCH is one of the slickest, quickest tricks when minutes count . . . for it attacks both grease and dirt on every clean-up job! Reason is that OLD DUTCH dissolves grease "quick-'s-a-flash" and contains a dirt remover, too. Names Seismotite, this dirt-remover is found ONLY in OLD DUTCH! This ideal combination of grease-dissolver, plus Seismotite, gives you a fast cleaning action no other material has. That's why, as tests have shown, OLD DUTCH is the fastest and easiest well-known cleanser.

Even the most scrupulously clean housekeeper is often hostess to insects in her home . . . for moths hide out in woolens, ants creep into cupboard crevices and silverfish dote on books and storage closets. Not, of course, to mention pesky roaches! So take my advice and enlist a WESTINGHOUSE Bug Bomb to write a sudden obituary for household insects! It's a hand-size aerosol-type insecticide dispenser that works automatically . . . just press with one finger and an atomized mist does the bug-killing job! A little goes a long way . . . reason it's so effective on bugs that like cracks and crevices! Because the WESTINGHOUSE Bug Bomb contains more pyrethrum, you can be sure it's SAFER — plus being clean and fast! Cost is $2.98 at Drug, Dept. and Appliance Stores.

Good For All of You!

With the "Little Red Schoolhouse" about to close down for vacation, you'll have more and more demands for "'tween-meal" snacks for the youngsters. So may I suggest RY-KRISP? Children like the thin, crisp wafer form of this 100% pure grain bread . . . and its rich rye flavor is delicious with all types of spreads. Best of all, you can depend on RY-KRISP not to dull the appetite for regular meals . . . for it's made from two blends of rye, salt and water and contains only 23 calories per wafer. That's why it's such a favored bread in reducing regimes. So ask for RY-KRISP . . . good for the kids, good for YOU!



Here's a tempting way to glorify the first fresh blueberries of the season! But there's more than meets the eye in the goodness of this recipe . . . for aside from the rewarding flavor "twin-up" of blueberries and delicious NABISCO 100% BRAN, you can be sure that this finer-milled bran is providing your family with important "diet-bulk." And because it's finer-milled, NABISCO 100% BRAN is milder, gentler in helping to promote "healthy regularity." Serve a cereal, too. Now for our BLUEBERRY PUDDING:

¾ cup NABISCO 100% BRAN
¼ cup milk
½ cup molasses
2 tbsp. melted fat
¾ cup sifted flour
¾ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
1 cup fresh blueberries

Pour milk and molasses over NABISCO 100% BRAN and let stand 5 minutes. Then add fat. Sift together flour, soda, and salt and add to first mixture. Stir only until blended. Stir in blueberries and pour into greased 8-inch cake pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 minutes. Serve warm with your favorite lemon or custard sauce. (Serves 6.)

It takes "tasting" to tell that HEINZ "57-Sauce" makes all the difference between plain cookery and the kind of cuisine famous chefs serve. Take for instance the dish at the left. It looks dull . . . is dull, and so devoid of flavor that appetites lag after the first forkful. Then note the dish on the right glorified by HEINZ "57-Sauce." It's got "everything" . . . flavor, savor and a rich brown color and so much appetite appeal that not a sliver will be left to be scraped away. Why such a big difference? Simply this. When you add HEINZ "57-Sauce," you add not just one but 17 different flavors, including exotic fruits, vegetables and a whole medley of aromatic spices. It's racy, rich brown . . . a condiment that gives . . .

- Stews a special savoriness
- So much goodness to gravies that the mashed potatoes you cook will always seem on the short side.
- An extra-deliciousness to casserole and fish dishes . . . to steaks, lamb chops and hamburgers.

There are dozens of different ways of using this famous sauce in your cooking, but talking isn't "tasting,"—so be sure to ask your Grocer for HEINZ "57-Sauce" tomorrow and start experimenting!

Chinese Students In Protest

NANKING, May 15—(AP)—Renewal of peace talks with Communists was urged Thursday by 20 members of the legislative Yuan, China's "Congress," as angry student demonstrations lent support to their contention that the lot of China's people was "almost too much to bear."

This plea was generally regarded as unlikely to have any result, since both the Government and Communists have shown not the slightest disposition to modify their mutually unacceptable conditions for halting the Civil War.

The legislators told the Yuan that economic conditions were growing worse daily and suggested that the State Council attempt to revive negotiations with the Communists. They said the Government apparently had abandoned any attempt to arrange peace, and deplored this attitude.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15 (AP)—An unidentified teamster asked Traffic Officer Richard Cann how to get his horse and wagon across San Francisco Bay to Oakland.

By bridge? Not allowed. By ferry? Not unless the horse is crated.

Cann brought out a map. You drive a horse and wagon from San Francisco to Oakland via Alviso, about 75 miles—or a good three days. It takes about 15 minutes to go over the bridge—by car, of course.

Golfers To Again Play Numbers Game

Mr. George S. May, of Chicago, takes a great deal of pride in informing one and all that his All-American Golf Tournament is the "world's richest" event of its kind.

The prize money for professionals in 1946 totaled $45,600 for men and $3,000 for women. Equally attractive merchandise prizes were awarded amateurs.

This year, however, Mr. May has announced the first reduction in the amount of money to be given the men in the seven-year history of the fabulous meet. The boys will get only $30,400 for their play July 3-6 and then only if they strictly comply with Mr. May's own weird interpretation of the numbers game.

Mr. May says his is the world's richest tournament; that it got that way through the co-operation of dollar-a-head customers; and that these customers like the idea of the entrants wearing identifying numbers on their backs.

Last year, 11 of the 160 golfers refused to wear the numbers and the amount of money they won was automatically cut 50 percent. The same goes this year and the top prize is worth $7,000 with a number and only $3,500 without.

Golfers are an individualistic group. Most of them do not react favorably to the wearing of the numbers. Those who refuse say they positively do not like the idea of looking like race horses going to the post. Others, not liking it either but not nearly so strongly, wear their numbers on the seat of their trousers.

Mr. May points out it is not compulsory that the player wear a number. But in the same breath, he adds that if they don't, their winnings will be shaved in half.

He further states that the amount of prize money for 1948 will be dependent upon the co-operation shown him by the pros this year.

Nevertheless, there are still a lot like Gene Sarazen, who quipped:

"If they don't know who I am without a number, I don't care if they never find out."

Most Cussed Course The Walker Cup matches will be played over the famous ol' St. Andrews course Friday and Saturday.

An idea of just what the boys are up against appeared in a story written by Steve Snider, United Press sports writer.

"St. Andrews is the most cussed and discussed golf course in the world," Steve penned. ". . . the greens—seven of them, anyway—handle two holes each, hence their fantastic size. Only the first, ninth, 17th and 18th holes have individual greens.

"To make matters worse, St. Andrews is a public fee course, but the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, which uses it, is a private Club which likes to call itself the 'cradle of golf.'

"Somewhere in the dim past, the folk of St. Andrews built a nine-hole course out along the course of St. Andrews Bay—straight out, yet—and when they reached the ninth green they found themselves a 'fur piece' from home. So they decided to play home, reeling off the holes in reverse order, creating no end of difficulty as their shots peppered off the heads of outbound golfers. This state of affairs existed until an 'in' course was laid out alongside the original and the greens were doubled up where possible.

"Coupled greens are two and 16; three and 15; four and 14; five and 13; six and 12; seven and 11; eight and 10. Going out it's 3,257 yards and coming in it's 3,315, a total of 6,572 with a par of 36-37—73.

"See what our pore little boys are up against?"

A Fight Is Brewing Consensus is that the United States team will have its hands full trying to recapture the Walker Cup.

Observers point out that three of the Americans—Smiley Quick, Frank Stranahan and Dick Chapman—are not in the best physical condition.

Quick is handicapped by a nail wound in the foot; Stranahan was knocked unconscious for three minutes by a golf ball, and Chapman is recovering from influenza.

However, the critics may not be taking into consideration the fighting spirit of the Americans. Quick, especially, is a fighter. During his service in the Seabees, he was under bombardment for three days. He is a right tough customer who has earned his living as a ditch digger, circus clown, bellhop, truck driver and telephone pole rigger.

Stranahan is a former football player and doesn't let a little thing like being kayoed for three minutes bother him.

The British may win but they'll know they've been in a battle—or the nearest thing to one golf can produce.

Roy Boles, Diehl Hurl Tonight

By F. M. WILLIAMS
Constitution Sports Writer.

MOBILE, Ala., May 15—Mobile made it two straight over the Atlanta Crackers, trouncing the visitors, 6-4, here Thursday night as the losers committed four errors but outhit the Bears, 11-9. Roy Boles, of Mobile, and George Diehl were slated to hurl the third game of the series Friday night.

After Trippi had struck out in the first inning, Steiner drew a walk and went to second on a wild pitch. Cieslak struck out on a wild pitch and lived at first on the error by Pitcher Hall. Steiner moved to third and scored on Glock's fly to left.

The Bears tied the score in the second on an unearned run. Dapper led off with a double. Connors' grounder was fielded by Steiner and then thrown wild at first, Dapper scoring. It was a hit and an error.

Blair tripled to open the fourth and scored when Ellis dropped a single into left field. A close play at second on Ulisney's grounder put a halter on the Crackers' scoring threat.

Trippi opened the fifth with a single off Wasiak's glove at second. He moved to second on a balk, to third on Steiner's infield out, and scored when Cieslak flied to deep right.

Thompson got the first two men in the Bear half of the fifth and then made the unpardonable sin of walking the pitcher. He also walked Abrams and when Wasiak singled to right, Pitcher Hall scored from second.

Campbell High Wins Honor School Award

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Little Campbell High School won top honors in The Constitution-sponsored Greater Atlanta Athletic Program for the second straight year, and Thursday night was presented the "honor school" trophy as this newspaper feted some 140 boys and girls winning enough points to gain designation as honor athletes.

Frank (Moose) Miller, of Decatur Boys High, with 2,040 points, and Doris Camp, of West Fulton, with 1,440 points, were presented trophies by H. H. Trotti, Vice President and Business Manager of The Constitution, as the Honor Boy and Honor Girl of 1947 at the banquet, which proved to be one of the most brilliant fetes of its kind in years here.

The piano and accordion wizardry that belongs only to Graham Jackson held the youngsters, school officials and guests spellbound for the better part of two hours after a half dozen selections by the Carver Boys Club chorus of 40 whetted their appetites for good music. Several youths, including Don Rogers, Decatur; Rosemary Byrd, Campbell; Richard Paula, Hapeville; Jake Brown, College Park, and Coach Weddington Kelly, North Fulton, proved they had talents beyond the realm of athletics by rendering solos.

Only speeches were by O. L. Amsler, Decatur School Superintendent; Jere Wells, Fulton County School Superintendant; Roy Brewer, director of the program, and Mr. Trotti, who made awards. Charlie Roberts acted as master of ceremonies.

Campbell, the winning school, had 2,830 points for the year. Following in order were Hapeville, Decaturs Boys, West Fulton, Fulton, North Fulton, Russell, College Park, Druid Hills, Decatur Girls.

4 Scotch Foursomes To Tee Off In Walker Cup Openers Today

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 15—(AP)—Natives here laid their sentiments behind Britain's Walker Cup defenders Thursday night but feared the worst—that the great silver trophy will be lifted out of its vault at the Royal and Ancient Club by the invading squad of Americans.

The international matches, first since 1938, open Friday over the "Old Course" with four Scotch foursomes, in which the two players on each team take turns whacking at a single ball. Eight singles matches Saturday will conclude the event. All matches will be over 36 holes.

Ted Bishop and Skee Riegel, U. S., vs. Joe Carr and Cecil Ewing, Britain.

Frank Stranahan and Dick Chapman, U. S., vs. Ronnie White and Charlie Stowe, Britain.

The peg of British hopes was the Irish pair of Carr and Ewing, who rounded the wet but rapidly drying course Thursday with a 3 and 2 victory over the Scots doubles team of Kyle and Wilson.

The huge cup for which the teams are contesting was donated in 1921 by George H. Walker, of the United States. American teams won it nine straight times before the British crashed through in 1938. Of a total of 120 individual matches to date, Americans have won 83, the British 27 and 10 have resulted in ties.

Either Bishop or Riegel will tee off for the Americans in the opening match at 10 a. m., double British Summer time (3 a. m. EST).

SEC Trackmen Open Annual Meet Today

By BERT PRATHER,
Constitution Sports Writer.

BIRMINGHAM, May 15—Track and field performers from the 12 Southeastern Conference schools open their annual two-day meet here Friday afternoon with the staging of preliminaries in track events up to the mile and in field events with the exception of the pole vault and high jump. All finals are scheduled Saturday afternoon.

Coach Norris Dean's Georgia Tech speedsters, winners of the championship in 1944 and 1945 and runners-up to Louisiana State in the 1946 games, Thursday night were still rated the team to beat.

Although given a chance for first places in the 100, 220, javelin and low hurdles, the powerful Jacket squadron was expected to pick up many of those all important second, third, fourth and fifth place points in other events. Only in the pole vault, high and broad jumps were the Jackets figured to be shut out completely.

Buddy Fowlkes and George Bailey, each with records of :9.8 and :21.8 in the two dashes, were rated as the men to beat in the sprints. Fowlkes also was considered a standoff in the low hurdles. Jim Nolan has the best premeet mark in the javelin thrust and is expected to tally five for Tech here.

The Tech runner with probably the toughest assignment is little Jack Corridan, who must face such highly rated stars as Fred Carley, Auburn; Spencer Johnson, Tulane; Whitey Overton, Auburn; Bob McMiller, Alabama and Louis Schneider, Tennessee, in the mile.

LSU, Mississippi State, Auburn and Tulane were the other teams given a chance for the title.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 15. (AP)—Coach Norris Dean, of Georgia Tech, said Thursday night two Tech pole vaulters had been ruled ineligible on the eve of the Southeastern Conference track and field meet.

The two, Jim Dykes and Charley Reiser, were ruled ineligible by SEC Commissioner Mike Connor for failure to fulfill the year's residence requirements, Dean said.

Decatur Nine Nips Marietta 4-3 in NGIC

Decatur trimmed Marietta, 4-3, at Decatur Thursday in an NGIC game that turned out to be a pitchers' battle, with Decatur's Homer Sims getting the best of the deal.

Sims hurled four-hit ball for the Bulldogs, while his teammates were able to gather only seven off Marietta's Rohner. Jim Umbricht sparked the Decatur attack with a home run and a triple in three trips, while Pitcher Sims also connected for two hits in three trips.

All NGIC baseball games will be postponed today because of the NGIC track meet.

Peach Blossom Meet Opens Today in Macon

MACON, May 15—The first annual Peach Blossom Golf Tourney, which opens Friday over the Idle Hour Country Club course, is expected to draw more than 100 entries, George Norris, Idle Hour pro, predicted Thursday.

Fifty-four golfers had entered through Wednesday night. Arnold Blum, of Macon, present Georgia State Amateur titleholder, posted a three-under-par 67 for the 6,101-yard Idle Hour layout, in a practice session. He went out in five-under-par 30, and came in with a two-over-par 37, to rate as one of the top favorites.

Also getting in a few practice licks before qualifying time were Bob McCoy, cross-handed artist from Atlanta.

Charley Harper, of Jacksonville, the long-distance hitter, toured the layout in a one-over-par 71. Among the other Atlanta golfers who played Wednesday but didn't keep scores were Jim Flowers, Joe Wofford, John Carter, Joe Hudson, Herman Dixon and Noon Hudson.

Edsel Benson, of Athens, with a 74, is low qualifier to date.

CRACKERS

Maupin beat out a bouncer to second, Connors holding second. Younghans rolled to Milosevich, who tried to beat Maupin to second, failed, and all hands were safe. It was an error for the shortstop and loaded the bases.

Hall hit a pop that Steiner gathered in and should have had Younghans doubled off first but Blair let the throw through him and Connors scored. Abrams singled to left scoring Maupin and Younghans.

The Crackers picked up a run in the eighth on a double by Blair and a single by Ellis, but the rally was a short-lived one as Ulisney popped and Milosevich rolled to short.

Robinson Slugfest On WAGA Tonight

Crafty Abrams knows all the moves and punches. Unlike most exponents of ring science, his style is aggressive. Georgie is a sharp infighter—a cool, cruel hitter. Everyone who knows a ring post from a ring apron is aware that his left is a thing of beauty and spells trouble for opponents.

Robinson does about everything a leather slinger can do—does it instinctively and with consummate skill. He has lost only one decision, was once held to a draw and for 52 foes it's been—boom, brother, that's it!

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WAGA (590 on your dial) at 10 p.m.

Georgia Nine Plays Tech

ATHENS, May 15—Georgia and Georgia Tech meet here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the first of a four-game series with little at stake except a win over a traditional rival.

The Jackets, who'll play on into June with Summer baseball won't play enough games to qualify for the Southeastern Conference crown, and the Bulldogs lost what little hopes they entertained by dropping both ends of a two-game series with Alabama's league leading Crimson Tide Monday and Tuesday.

The Bulldogs and Jackets meet in Atlanta Saturday and again on May 30, and close the series here May 31.

Stock Sales

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—The stock market today got a selective foothold on recovery although demand was notably timid and many leaders did little or nothing on the comeback.

The revival was attributed mainly to short covering and buying by professionals who felt that three successive retreats to within reaching distance of last October's bear market low entitled the list to a technical rebound even if the downswing was to be resumed later. Mild inspiration was derived from the John L. Lewis agreement to negotiate coal mine differences. The question of labor legislation, the business outlook, taxes and foreign problems again provided the principal restraint.

Assorted steels, motors, oils and rubbers stepped out in front during the forenoon but dealings soon slowed and top gains of fractions to two or more points were reduced in the majority of cases at the close. A number of pivotals ended on the offside after touching lows for the year. Transfers of 770,000 shares compared with 1,050,000 Wednesday.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .3 of a point at 60.5, its first advance since Saturday. Of 922 issues registering, 475 rose and 245 fell.

Railroad bonds tried a comeback with fair success in today's market. As trading swung into the final hour gains of around a point were posted for such bellwethers as Missouri Pacific 5s of '77, Frisco 4s, and St. Paul convertibles. Medium and low priced rails in several instances moved up major fractions to more than a point, although the higher trend in this group was not uniform. Industrials and utilities were less inclined to join the rising side but the general trend was steady.

Among Curb gainers were Aluminum of America, Cities Service, Creole Petroleum and Middle West Corp. Turnover here was 230,000 shares versus 300,000 yesterday.

Profit-Taking Wips Out Wheat Price Gain

CHICAGO, May 15—(AP)—An early bulge in wheat ran into heavy profit-taking today and the market reversed itself and dropped below the preceding close. Other grains followed the trend of the bread cereal.

Wide price fluctuations characterized dealings in May wheat. Within the first hour it soared 7⅛ cents to a new seasonal peak, after which it turned and plunged with equal speed. The day's price range in this contract extended to more than 12 cents.

Wheat closed 1⅛ to 2 cents lower, May $2.76-$2.76¾, corn was ¼ lower to 1⅛ higher, May $1.73¾, and Oats ⅜-⅞ lower, May 93¼-½.

WHAT PROTECTION HAS AN AUTOMOBILE BUYER TODAY?

A BUYER has the protection of honest and upright treatment when he buys or sells to a dealer who will not compromise with principles or the high ethical standards of the industry he represents.

IN FAIRNESS to the great majority of all automobile dealers who have and are operating on a high ethical standard it should be said that only a very small percentage of the country's dealers have stooped to money-hungry operations just like a small percentage of the public tempt the dealers with fabulous bonuses to give them an unfair advantage. We are cognizant of what is going on as are the people of Georgia. The victims of unethical practices will long remember and never forgive the few who inflict injustices on them.

WE ARE not excusing this minority of its malpractice but we do want to point out that your protection against being victimized is to tie up with a dealer who has built his business through good will, frankness, sincerity and with an eye to his past, present and future, pleasant public relations.

Lady Astor Plans Visit to Virginia

LONDON, May 15—(AP)—Lady Astor, first woman member of Britain's parliament, will sail for the United States Sunday on the Queen Elizabeth.

Her personal secretary said the visit — an indeterminate one — would be private and that most of it would be spent with her niece, Mrs. Jack Polk, at Charlottesville, Va.

It will be the Viscountess' second return to her native land since the end of the war; she and her husband passed the first five months of 1946 there.

Lady Astor did not run for re-election to Parliament at the last general election.

Iced tea days are here again. Don't forget—the best flavored drink is made from freshly brewed tea poured over plenty of ice. Tea that's cooled before icing will be muddy and less flavorful.

For company occasions, spiced iced tea is a delicious variation. Add cinnamon sticks, sugar and a very few cloves to the tea as it brews. Serve the iced tea with a garnish of lemon or limes. Incidentally, limes are a pleasant change from lemons with iced tea.

For versatility, eggs take a bow . . . three meals a day. For luncheon salad, add a little grated tuna fish to the filling for deviled eggs. Serve with potato chips, tomato slices, hot rolls.

If you haven't already tried scrambled eggs with deviled ham—do. Serve for breakfast, supper or lunch. Just open a little can of ready-to-eat deviled ham. As eggs begin ever so slightly to set in the pan, stir in the ham. Continue cooking, mixing in the ham as you stir.
